Mandrell, Federation Fete 1,500 At Poultry Fund-Raiser

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — More than 1,500 poultry industry representatives, family, and friends each paid $125 a ticket Wednesday night to support the 27th annual Pennsylvania Poultry Federation Fund Raising Banquet at the Hershey Convention Center.

The Wednesday night banquet featured a potpourri of selections, including country western and old time rock 'n' roll, from entertainer Louise Mandrell. Mandrell created her own nationally syndicated television special and a stage show, "Love My Country," which she wrote, produced, and performed in Opryland's Acuff Theatre.

John Hoffman, Federation president, said the banquet is the primary source of funds for the state poultry federation, which benefits producers with a wide range of services.

The Federation is a 501(c)(5) nonprofit organization serving the Pennsylvania poultry industry. Its activities directly and indirectly affect the economic health of the industry through legislation and government relations, disease control, research, public relations, promotion, publications, youth programs, conferences, and scholarships.

Lambs And Youth Raise Spring Hope

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Frisky lambs and 4-H youth go together to make us think of spring and give us hope for new beginnings and future generations. The young people in the photo belong to Ed and Larue Donough and are often seen with their Suffolk/ Hampshire sheep and lambs at local and state shows. They are Ryan, 10; Joelynn, 6, and Travis, 14. Lambs make good projects because they take less space than some of the larger animals.

But sheep, lamb, and wool production is also big business. For example, this week the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service reported that wool production in the state during 1993 totaled 708,000 pounds with a value of $255,000. A total of 101,000 sheep and lambs were shorn during the year, and the average fleece weight was seven pounds.

Nationally, 9.93 million sheep and lambs produced 77.3 million pounds of wool with a value of $39 million, which proves you can have a lot of fun around the sheep farm in spring, but it is serious business, too. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Miss Magic Flair Grand At Spring Holstein Show

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Miss Magic Flair, a 4-year-old Holstein owned by Donald and Barbara Reisinger and Heidi Miller, was named grand champion of the Pennsylvania Spring Holstein Show, the first show of the season, held last Friday in the Large Arena of the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

The spring show, called "Pennsylvania on Parade," was the 41st spring show of the state association and was judged by Richard Keene, of Gilbertsville, N.Y. There were 278 head checked in for the competition.

Keene had judged Flair as a younger cow and said she has improved nicely since then.

The daughter of Romandale Magic and Cliff-Spring-B Enhance Finesse, Flair was bred by Reisinger, of Carlisle, and Miller, of Tamaqua, and was named the best udder of the 4-year-olds.

Wednesday, April 6, 1994

Ready-to-cook whole birds was generally good. Seller offerings were adequate to well cleared. Live supplies were moderate, occasionally heavy. Weights remained in a full range, but were mostly heavy. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged to 1 cent higher at 51 to 62 cents. Trade sentiment was fully steady to higher. In the parts complex, bone-in breasts were in short supply. Boneless skinless breasts were in closer balance, but were at least adequate. Leg quarters were fully adequate. Wings were well cleared at some plants, slow to clear at others.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, April 6, 1994

Trucklot buying interest was about as expected for mid-week needs with some late week interest developing. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were irregularly distributed but floor stocks overall were in better balance than early week. Trading was slow to develop this morning but improved by mid-day. Reported prices continued in a range of 1.75 to 1.80 but the majority of trades were at the 1.80 level. The undertone was fully steady. Line run breasts were short of needs. Available supplies were in firm hands with asking prices trending higher. Leg quarters were about adequate but the undertone was firm. Wings were steady.

NATIONAL EGG MARKET-AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady to barely steady, with some continued cautiousness. Demand was mixed, and mostly fair to fairly good, with restocking after the good Easter clearances still a factor. Supplies were adequate or available in all areas. Breaking stock prices were unchanged, and demand was spotty for the adequate to fully adequate supplies. Live hen markets were no better than steady, and offerings were adequate to ample for the fair at best demand; most plants were booked full through the month.

Wednesday, April 6, 1994

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY GRAIN AND SOYBEAN PRICES CONTINUED TO CLIMB ON TUESDAY'S CLOSING STRENGTH. WHEAT 2 TO 8 CENTS HIGHER. CORN 1 TO 2 CENTS HIGHER. SORGHUM 2 TO 3 CENTS HIGHER. SOYBEANS 4 CENTS HIGHER. EXPORT DEMAND AND OPTIMISM FOR CHINA'S BUSINESS CONTINUED TO SUPPORT WHEAT PRICES. SOME CONCERNS OVER FREEZING TEMPERATURES IN SOUTHERN PLAINS AREAS, ADDED TO PRICE GAINS. RECENT SNOW COVER, HOWEVER, IN DRY AREAS OF KANSAS, LIMITED UPTURN. CORN PRICES INCHED SLIGHTLY HIGHER, ON INCREASED FARMER SELLING. SLACK EX- PORT DEMAND AND SPILLOVER STRENGTH FROM WHEAT AND BEANS PRICES, UNDERPINNED PRICES. REPORTS THAT PORTUGAL WILL TENDER FOR 70,000 METRIC TONS U.S. CORN THIS WEEK LENT SOME SUPPORT. HIGHER SOYBEAN PRICES WERE INFLUENCED BY LIGHT EXPORT INTERESTS AND FUND BUYING ON THE BOARD. RAIN DELAYED HARVEST IN BRAZIL AND FORECASTS FOR ADD- ITIONAL WETNESS THERE GAVE U.S. BEAN PRICES A BOOST.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

APRIL 11-17, 1994

ASTRONOMY WEEK.

WATCH THE SKY

Astronomy is Fun! That's the annual message of Astronomy Day, a day set aside each spring to "bring astronomy to the people," with events and displays planned across the country It's April 16th this year, and with the Moon two days prior to first quarter, there'll be plenty to see in the night sky. To find out what's planned in your area, contact your local planetarium or astronomy club. Didn't know you had a local astronomy club? For $1 postage and handling, Sky & Telescope magazine, one of the 15 cosponsors of Astronomy Day, will send a listing of U.S. clubs. Or, send for their informative article "Getting Started in Astronomy," also available for $1 postage. Write to Sky & Telescope, Customer Service, P.O. Box 9111, Belmont, MA 02178

The sky is the daily bread of the eyes. — Ralph Waldo Emerson

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Freshen wilted lettuce by soaking for 10 minutes in cold water with a few drops of lemon juice.

EARWISE

A clear night sky, twinkling with thousands of stars, is a tantalizing sight. But it's one that is rapidly disappearing Light pollution not only floods our nighttime sky, but wastes resources as well. The sky glow resulting from inefficient, poorly directed lighting costs over $1 billion annually in wasted energy in the U S alone Contact the International Dark Sky Association, 3545 N. Stewart, Tucson, AZ 85716, to find out what you can do in your community. It would be a shame if our children and grandchildren never knew "Twinkle, twinkle, little star. "

OPINION

Invest In Ag Research

While the amount of food produced worldwide increased in recent decades due to scientific advances in farming, a record explosion in the world's population will outstrip food production in coming years if research on new farming technologies and food policies is neglected, warns a Washington-based institute that monitors trends affecting the world's food supply. The international community, made complacent by current food surpluses in Europe and North America and low world food prices, is failing to invest in the agricultural research necessary to produce enough food for the burgeoning population in many developing countries, said a report released today by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI).

"Over the next 20-30 years, farmers and policymakers in developing countries will be challenged to provide food at affordable prices for almost 100 million more people every year — the largest annual population increase in history," said IFPRI Director General Per Pinstrup-Andersen, author of the report entitled World Food Trends and Future Food Security. "Moreover, they will have to increase food production from more productive use of the land and without further degradation of natural resources — (farm) area expansion is no longer a feasible option in most of the world."

Agricultural research has produced new varieties of important food crops that yield more food per acre and are more resistant to pests and diseases that destroy crops. These scientific advances literally saved millions of people from starvation in the 1960s and 1970s. IFPRI warns that these advances may be lost in the future if governments do not actively pursue research for sustainable agricultural development.

"Given the long lag time between investment in agricultural research and the resulting production increases, failure to invest today will show up in production shortfalls 10 to 20 years from now," Pinstrup-Andersen said. "The problems associated with environmental degradation will present themselves sooner. We must not wait until a global food crisis is upon us or until the last tree has fallen to make these investments."

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Evaluate Planting Alfalfa

This year, spring weather has been anything but helpful in getting into fields. It is April and very little of anything has been done in fields, including getting ready to plant alfalfa.

Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, makes the following observations.

Normally by the end of April, nearly all the alfalfa seedlings are done. As we move later into what we would normally consider the growing season, the question is, "What is the optimum planting time for a particular crop?."

Research has shown that alfalfa may be planted through the month of May in south central Pennsylvania with fairly good results. However, plantings which have been delayed that long are normally under a lot more pressure from weeds if a herbicide is not used.

Many things should be considered when deciding whether to plant alfalfa late or to plant corn or another crop. It may be worth saving an old alfalfa field until next year and planting another crop this year if getting alfalfa planted is delayed past the end of April.

If a short season corn is grown for silage this year, it may be possible to achieve better results planting a fall seeding of alfalfa in that field. Careful selection of corn herbicides is necessary with this plan.

To Evaluate Alfalfa Fields

A good time to evaluate the potential of a alfalfa field for the year and to re-evaluate winter damage is after the alfalfa starts growing this spring or after the first cutting.

To evaluate your field, use a piece of wire to make a one foot by one foot square. Drop this square at several locations in the field and count the number of stems found.

If the field has an average of 55 or more stems per square foot, maximum yields should be obtained. If there are between 40 and 55 stems per square foot, the yield should be economically worth keeping for the season. If there are less than 40 stems per square foot, consider rotating the field to corn.

To Properly Care For Fleeces

Chester Hughes, extension livestock agent, said that wool is one of the most poorly handled farm products marketed.

Some sheep producers only receive half of their wool value because they market fleeces that are full of hay, straw, burrs, mud, or other foreign materials.

Fleeces are often tied with everything from baling wire to binder twine.

Paper twine is the only acceptable product for tying fleeces. Hughes offers the following tips when shearing and handling fleeces:

- Shear only when the wool is dry.
- Clean the straw off the belly and legs before starting to shear.
- Shear on a clean, dry surface.
- Avoid second cuts; remove the fleece in one piece.
- Remove all tags, dunning locks, and stained wool from the fleece and bag them separately.
- If there is a lot of hay, chaff or other material in the neck area, remove this section from the fleece and bag separately.
- Bag separately black fleeces or fleeces with a large amount of black in them. Remove black leg and face wool from the fleece and bag with the black wool.
- Roll fleece with the flesh side out and tie securely, but not too tightly, into a neat package.
- Tie fleeces with paper twine only. Never use plastic baler twine or allow the fleeces to become contaminated with plastic twine.
- Tie fleeces separately. Do not tie several together.
- Store the tied fleeces in a wool bag in a clean, dry area that is protected from dust, dirt, and rodents. Do not store in plastic bags or paper bags.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

AREYOU SURE YOU'RE ALIVE?

April 10, 1994

Background Scripture:
Romans 8:1-11
Devotional Reading:
Romans 8:26-28, 35-39

I'm sure you've heard the story about the rich Texas widow whose last request was that she be buried in her Mercedes. As she and her luxury car were being lowered into the huge grave, one of the gravediggers was heard to exclaim: "Man, that's living!"

Actually, we have a hard time in determining what is living and what is not. Very often that which we identify with living is in reality a kind of death. Just because the body goes through the motions of living doesn't guarantee that the person is alive. Living, in its deepest sense, involves a lot more than breathing and animation.

On two different occasions I've had the opportunity to go to the famous marionette theater in Saizbur, Austria. As the show began, I found, I was aware that the figures on the stage were marionettes and not human actors. But soon I found myself thinking of them as human. The skill of the marionette masters had made them come alive. On one occasion, I had the chance to go back stage after the presentation and I was struck by how lifeless the marionettes were. Hung on a hook or lying on the floor, it was obvious there was no life in them.

SPIRITUALLY DEAD

I've noticed that with some people, too. They go through the motions of living, but they do not live. They are not alive. Paul says, "To set the mind on the flesh is death . . ." (Romans 8:6). Paul is not speaking of mere physical flesh itself, but of the lower nature of humanity that drags us down instead of lifting us up. Paul is not putting down the human body, but the baseness of a life that is lived just on a material or physical level. It is a life that rises no higher than physical appetites. A person so focused on his or her life is spiritually dead. Things have separated that person from God. "For the mind that is set on the flesh," says Paul, "is hostile to God" (8:7). So, it is possible to be clinically alive and yet spiritually dead.

Wonderful as the physical material world may be, it dies not, cannot satisfy our deepest longings. But that is so hard for us to understand, for these material things are so attractive. For example, have you ever looked forward to a special lunch or dinner — perhaps a birthday or anniversary celebration — that promises to be something spectacular. No matter how wonderful the meal and the occasion are, the satisfaction is fleeting. We may be quite hungry the very next morning and bored by late afternoon.

ACCORDING TO THE SPIRIT

In John 6 Jesus reminds his listeners that "Your fathers ate the manna in the wilderness, and they died." No material things can keep us alive forever. Only the spiritual can do that: "I am the bread of life," said Jesus, "he who comes to me shall not hunger" (6:35). When we walk "not according to the flesh but according to the spirit," Paul says, we are set free of the corruption of all materiality. "For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus has set me free from the law of sin and death" (8:2).

The key is that upon which we set our minds and hearts. "For those who live according to the flesh set their minds on the things of the flesh," Paul tells the Romans, "but those who live according to the Spirit set their minds on the things of the Spirit" (8:5) A mind set upon skim milk doesn't produce whipped cream. A heart that is given to prejudice, jealous, envy and material things cannot have room for the life-giving Spirit.

If you want to check to see if you're alive, don't feel your pulse; check your mind and see whether it is focused on "things of the flesh" or "things of the Spirit."

WARNING!

DON'T THROW AWAY UP TO 45% OF YOUR HAY.

Losses occur when crops are stored--regardless of the storage method. Those losses are real--colorless, odorless and invisible--you can't see them, but they're there.

The air trapped within stored feed begins the fermentation process--and fermentation continues until all the air is consumed. The less air within the stored feed, the less loss.

Because bunker silos are not easily packed, losses in bunker silos range from 27% to 45%. If the feed is valued at $30 per ton, every 1000 tons stored in a bunker would suffer losses from $8,100 to $13,500. Tower silo losses range from 3% to 8%, or $900 to $2400 for every 1000 tons.

Those losses occur for every 1000 tons--every time feed is stored, year after year. Before investing in any storage method, consider the total costs--including fermentation loss.

Compare the various methods of feed storage. Contact the Crop Storage Institute for your free copy of " Methods of Crop Storage" and "Know the Facts."

A Full Season Of Grass Control In Every Micro-Capsule.

If you could look inside a micro-capsule of Partner® herbicide, you'd see something remarkable. A full season's worth of grass control plus the added bonus of superior crop safety.

TIMED-RELEASE, SEASON-LONG GRASS CONTROL IN CORN AND BEANS.

Because of its unique encapsulated formula, Partner "meters out" grass control throughout the growing season. The kind of effective preemergent control you need to stop yield-robbing grasses like foxtails, fall panicum and barnyardgrass.

Plus, the timed-release action of Partner provides maximum crop safety. Especially when young plants are most susceptible to herbicide stress.

CONVENIENT DRY FORMULATION MIXES QUICKLY AND EASILY.

Unlike other grass herbicides, Partner comes in an easy-to-handle dry formulation. And while it mixes quickly and completely in your tank, there are no meters to mess with, no pumps to replace and no containers to rinse.

This year, ask your dealer for timed-release Partner herbicide from Monsanto.

SEASON-LONG CONTROL THAT'S EASY TO HANDLE.

Star shaped core optimizes RFV.

With the new 4800 Series Round Balers, you'll be baling hay earlier.

You'll put more high-protein leaves in the bale for higher relative feed value (RFV). And, the star-shaped core allows the bale to breath, optimizing RFV at feeding time, too.

Best of all, the new 4800 Round Balers are easy to use.

Select the best size for your operation: 700, 900, or 2000 pounds. Then ask to see one at your White-New Idea dealer or call 1 800 767-3221.

Somerset Holstein

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — Three directors of the Somerset County Holstein Club whose terms were set to expire this year, have all been reelected to three-year terms. They are Jeff Hillegass, Berlin, Harry Mosholder, Rockwood and David Stahl, Somerset.

Directors whose terms expire in 1995 are Greg Coleman, Rockwood; Dan Kimmel, Boswell and Willard Maust, Meyersdale. Those ending in 1996 are Mike Countryman, Berlin; Jane Smiley, Berlin and Mike Stutzman, Stoystown.

The election was held during the business session that followed dinner at the club's annual meeting; rescheduled when yet another blizzard blasted the area and sensible folks stayed home instead of traveling anywhere.

But March weather is unpredictable. So when some vagary of the season took the sunny temperature to a balmy 70 degrees on banquet day, not a soul was complaining. The doors of the local fire hall were thrown open and overhead fans switched on to whirr with the intruding robin's cheep.

Youth awards were presented by Jane Smiley and Ben Miller, president of the Somerset Co. Junior Holstein Club.

The county two-yr. old winner for milk, fat and protein was Nick Hunsberger's BJ-Line Winken Roseann at 2-08, 27,066M, 908F and 910P.

Second place two-yr. old for milk and protein was Michele Countryman's Lansdown Dazzler Satin, 1-11, 24,727M, 796P.

Two-yr. old in second place for fat was Antrim-Spring Insp Reina owned by Justin Hillegass, 884F.

Three-yr. old Somerset Co. winner for milk, fat and protein, owned by Kirsten Miller, was

Chester-Delaware Farmers Hold Spring Meeting

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

WEST FALLOWFIELD (Chester Co.) — About 80 of the 751 members of the Chester-Delaware Farm Bureau attended the organization's 41st annual spring banquet meeting Thursday night at the West Fallowfield Christian School to share fellowship and recognize some of the support provided by members and political leaders.

State Rep. Art Hershey discusses legislative actions with members of the Chester-Delaware Farm Bureau.

The Chester-Delaware group is comprised of a mixture of representatives of farming activities, especially mushroom growers and horse enthusiasts, in addition to dairy, livestock and poultry producers.

The affiliate of the state Farm Bureau has yet to officially adopt its new name, but is using it until the fall meeting, when it annually conducts its business meeting and reviews proposals.

The purpose of the spring meeting, according to Barclay Hoopes, president of the Chester-Delaware FB, is to inform the members about the association's current programs and services. It is not a policy development meeting.

Similar spring banquets across the state are likewise held at this time because it is prior to spring field work and after the organization's national and state legislative tours. During the tours, representatives of county and state affiliates visit with elected representatives to voice concerns.

The Chester-Delaware group is especially concerned with local tax reform, being in an area which has received heavy pressure from urbanization that has increased land values because of commuters. The commuters who work in high salary areas have brought to recently rural areas an ability to pay more for real estate than locally employed residents.

That alone has resulted in an increase in local real estate taxes.

In addition, the increase in residential growth has also increased the demand for services and has increased local taxes.

On Thursday, the Chester-Delaware group presented an award to state Rep. James Gerlach, R-Coatesville, for his efforts in sponsoring state House Bill 2202. The proposed legislation calls for local tax reform and would enable local taxing authorities, in municipalities beneath a certain level of population, to tax income or use a local sales tax, as an alternative to taxing real estate.

For agriculturalists, especially, taxing real estate is burdensome because it does not reflect an ability to pay, but rather is considered a tax on investment.

Deriving more local tax revenues from income would lessen the burden on those with high real estate investment, but low margin, while allowing more of the share of local taxes to come from commuters with higher income.

The move is seen as a more equitable method of taxing on ability to pay for services rendered.

As the situation currently exists, studies have shown that agricultural landowners receive less in local services than they pay in taxes, while residential developments receive more in services than they pay in taxes.

Gerlach, in his second term as representative, is also a member of the Chester County Agricultural Devleopment Council.

Colin Johnston, a veterinarian at New Bolton Center and secretary of the Chester-Delaware County Farm Bureau, made the award presentation and cited Gerlach for his strength in character for being willing to "... cross political party lines for agricultural interests."

Gerlach's proposal passed the Democratically controlled House of Representatives by a vote of 177-19.

The group also recognized work done by Ray Pickering, who is executive director fo the Chester County Agricultural Land Preservation Board.

According to Johnston and Hoopes, the local association is proud of the efforts of community leaders to establish and see through an aggressive farmland preservation program.

In that respect, the group also recognized Patricia Baldwin, a former county commissioner for her efforts for the agricultural community.

As president of the Junior Holstein Club, Miller's job included capsulating the year's events. However, the naturally winsome young man's engaging delivery had the guests roaring with delight. Few seemed to care what he said, because they got lost in how he said it.

Lewis and Barbara Berkley, Berlin, are on the committee planning the 1995 National Holstein Convention slated for Pittsburgh. "I guarantee it will be a showcase sale, not only for Pennsylvania, but for the United States," stated Berkley in urging attendance from the Somerset Co. Holstein Club members.

No Worry About Excess Soil Moisture On Berks Conservation Farm

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MECKVILLE (Berks Co.) — Glenn and Karen Musser and family consider themselves more fortunate than others who may face catastrophic losses of farmland because of melting snow and rain in the southeastern portion of the state.

In some places on the drive through Lebanon County (which borders their land), some say it looks like a miniature Minnesota, a land labeled for its lakes.

Areas are so wet that, in some spots, corn crops won't go in this year.

But for the Mussers, dairy farmers who were recently honored as the Berks County Conservation Farmers of the Year, only a small area on a field is still considerably wet.

At one time, before tiles were installed to take care of the water, soil moisture may have been a big concern. But since the installation of more than 13,000 feet of tiles, the Mussers are breathing a sigh of relief that, soon, planting can get under way.

Glenn, who farms with wife Karen and sons Gary, 6 and Travis, 3, moved to the farm in 1989. In 1992, the Mussers signed up with the district to have conservation practices placed on the farm.

In the spring of 1992, the Mussers installed a circular concrete manure storage structure with a capacity of 300,000 gallons. Then, with help from ASCS, strips and contours were layed out according to a plan to reduce soil erosion and to allow the fertile valleys to remain profitable.

"When we first moved up here, there were only one or two fields that were farmed the past year," said Glenn, who, with the help from his father, Rufus, purchased the farm. "The rest were just left go."

Rufus moldboard-plowed the land in the winter, so much of it was ready for planting in the spring.

Musser quickly adopted a plan to use minimum tillage and some no-till on the land. The minimum tillage involves chisel plowing and discing.

Musser raises about 160 acres of crops, including about 60 acres of hay, 90 acres of corn, and about 10 acres of soybeans. He uses a cover crop on some of the corn — about 25 acres — which is used as a forage in the spring. The rest is disced under to contribute to the fertilization and organic buildup of the soil.

Musser no-tills about 20 acres.

The dairyman said it "took a year or two before we had it down. And we're still learning a lot.

"We're doing quite a bit of strip-cropping now and we still have a few waterways to put in," he said.

When he began working the land, there were a lot of "obnoxious" weeds, he said. Included were Johnsongrass and some other troublesome weeds, "which we're still dealing with. You can't get rid of that in two years."

They also installed some contouring, which includes about 30 acres to keep erosion down. Forunately, the remainder of the tillable land is flat enough that only strips are needed (about 90 acres altogether).

For the dairy farmers, the winter was nothing if not trying. They did their best to maintain the 68 Holstein cows (58 milking) of 80 percent registered and the rest grade, including 70 head of replacement stock. Fortunately, with help from their township superviser John Brown, the lanes got plowed in time to move the milk truck in.

The last snowstorm, which dumped more than a foot of snow, the township called the Mussers and asked for the schedule of the milk truck. "(Brown) called up before the snow actually hit, because he wanted to get the schedule so he could get in," said Karen.

The last winter was nothing like the Blizzard of '93, which left many farmers unprepared. At that time, Glenn remembers the cows that had to be held back for two hours of milking before the truck could make it through.

This time, using a V-plow, it took only a short time to open the lane to get the truck in.

Because of the severe cold in mid-January this year, several water troughs in the barn were getting "tacky," or near-frozen, and that caused some problems.

"We were worried that a couple of the calves might freeze," said Karen. "We wrapped them in a blanket."

Karen said that the wind chill that time "seemed colder than when it was 20 or 30 degrees below."

Also, the snow melt on top of the manure storage structure caused it to fill quickly. They were forced to empty the structure because of the extra load.

Glenn credits Dave Yonkers of the ASCS office in Berks County for helping with installing all the conservation practices and for the honor.

"Dave really helped me out," said Musser. "If it wouldn't be for him, I don't think we'd be where we are now."

As for the honor, Musser hopes that his experiences can prove valuable to other farmers in dealing with stressful elements such as the weather and the behavior of the soil.

Musser also credits his success in farming to his father, Rufus, who helped him get started in farming. "If it wouldn't be for Dad, I wouldn't be here."

Musser wants to someday merchandise his registered cattle. He has already sold some of his herd to Saudia Arabia and farmers in western Pennsylvania. In addition, during the summer, the dairy farmer does custom round baling for neighbors.

He also has help on the farm from a neighbor, Matthew Bennetch, full-time.

Also, there are other conservation practices Musser wants to install in the future, including "more tiling and waterways," he said.

Juniata Holstein Association Presents Awards

MIRIAM WERT
Juniata Co. Correspondent

PORT ROYAL (Juniata Co.) — The Juniata County Holstein Association annual meeting was held April 5 in the Port Royal Community Building.

Current directors, Glen Henry and Russell Adamire, Jr., were re-elected and are joined by newly-elected Karen Diffenderfer.

Becky Woodward, Juniata County dairy princess, spoke on the nutritional value of milk and of its many uses. She reminded the group that they can promote the use of milk by giving dairy basket gifts and ordering milk in restaurants. She mentioned that candidates are needed for Dairy Princess for the coming year.

Donald Adams, sale chairman, reported that there will be more embryo and cattle exports to Saudi Arabia, which has very strict requirements.

Nancy Toms, junior activities chairperson, gave the junior awards for production as follows: Two-year-old cow, two-year record of milk production — 1st, David Glock, 20,746#; 2nd - Danielle Mummah, 18,732#; 3rd - Mark Wagner, 18,724#; 4th - Ronda Mummah, 18,560#. Awards were also given for butterfat and protein content, with David Glock winning 1st in the protein category and Danielle Mummah winning 1st in the butterfat category. Diane Glock won 1st in all categories for 3, 4 and 5-year-old cows.

It was announced that the Juniata County junior judging team took first place in the state, being an unusual forty points ahead of second place. The senior team placed 11th. The junior team was made up of Tara Kocher, David Glock and Ronda Mummah. Senior team members were Diane Glock, Missy Hostler and Averin Donough. Diane was 10th overall, out of about 100 entrants in the oral report presentation. The oral report must be given as to the judges' reasons for their selections, just as professional judges of 4-H competition do.

Diane Glock received a special award given by the PA Holstein Association for being a finalist in the 4-H state competition for distinguished junior member in the intermediate division. Dan Guessiner was a finalist in the senior division. This is a very prestigious award because they must present a scrapbook of all they have done in 4-H, write a story and be interviewed. Six boys and six girls were chosen in the state, and Juniata County is proud to have these finalists.

Special guest speaker was Dave Rama of Delhi, NY, owner of the Cattle Exchange Auction Service. Rama travels through PA and other eastern coast states as well as Canada, helping purchasers look for hi-grade cattle. In that capacity, as well as an auctioneer, he is instrumental in selling about 8,000 head of dairy cattle a year.

Rama gave many good points to the listeners concerning merchandising of their cattle. First, they must set specific goals and keep to them, and it is important never to let go of type. He mentioned three categories, namely Index, Show, and Red & White, the latter being 75% of all cows in the world as they are a dual purpose breed. The Index and Show cattle make up 4% of the cattle population, leaving the remaining 96% for the more ordinary producers such as are on most family farms. Rama continued to emphasize never to let go of type; be consistent; never lose sight of the importance of breeding toward accomplishing that purpose, not only for development of the herd but also to be prepared for good sale of the animals.

Rama finds that only about 80% of dairy farmers know the net amount of their milk check. Thus it is possible that they do not have sufficient records for them to set a selling price when approached by a buyer or in consignment sales.

He urged the farmers to contact the State Holstein Association if they need help as to keeping records or for advice on sales. He finds that many farmers ask for too much money for their cows. They must take time to figure the amount they have invested in the animal and add 25 or 30%. More than that will probably lose the sale.

Rama also urged sale of a show cow before the show. If an animal is shown and is not a winner, it will bring a much lower sale price after the sale. He also mentioned that integrity is a must, as happy clients are important for future sales. Always thank a buyer even if the selling price was not as high as expected.

Export sales of cattle and embryos continue to Japan and other countries and should not be overlooked by farmers in our area. Information on this can also be obtained from the state association.

Ag Secretary Wolff Appoints Ed Arnold Deputy

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Former state representative Ed Arnold, of North Lebanon Township, on Monday took over the reigns of Pennsylvania deputy secretary of agriculture and is to be responsible for economic and market development.

Arnold was appointed to the position that was previously held by Neal Buss, who left earlier this year.

Boyd Wolff, state secretary of agriculture, said in a statement, "Ed has many years of experience in agriculture. He'll be a valuable asset to our management team."

The 51-year-old Arnold, a Democrat, has been active in local politics for a number of years, serving as a commissioner in Lebanon County for eight years, from 1979 to 1987, and then served a 2-year-term in the state House of Representatives until losing a reelection bid in 1992 to current Rep. Peter Zug, a Republican.

Since September, Arnold has been working for the agriculture department as chief of the PDA Commodity Promotions Division. In that position, Arnold has worked to help support the state commodity promotion boards of directors, such as the ones under the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program, and the Vegetable Marketing and Research Program.

Arnold grew up on a dairy farm in Northern Lebanon Township and had been in partnership with his mother, and brother Mike Arnold, of Arnold Acres, until several years ago.

Ed and his wife Patricia currently live on a 100-acre farm in the same area and keep a few Holstein dairy heifers, along with a Jersey calf one of their four daughters uses for a 4-H project animal.

"I'm pleased to try to contribute to Pennsylvania agriculture in any way. I feel that with my background in agriculture and government, I can contribute to the betterment of Pennsylvania agriculture," he said Thursday in a telephone interview.

His main four areas of concern are to be assisting Secretary Wolff in farmland preservation, agricultural development, agricultural marketing and government-donated foods.

"My goal is to assist the secretary in completing what he's really begun," Arnold said. "Farmland preservation has been an aggressive program in the state, and I hope to continue that for the rest of the Casey administration."

Furthermore, Arnold said that his experience with the promotion groups has been rewarding.

"I think the dairy industry can certainly be proud of the program they have in the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. I think we have an excellent staff and their efforts in using the promotion moneys have been putting the (check-off funds) to good use. Likewise, the apple program has progressed," he said.

A 1961 graduate of Lebanon Catholic High School, he received a bachelor's degree in political science from Lebanon Valley College in 1966. He also has 25 years experience in dairy farming.

Including memberships and chairmanships of professional organizations, he has served on the Pa. Milk Marketing Board from 1982 to 1983, and was a director and vice president of the Lehigh Valley Farmers during the same time.

Council To Consider Public Policy

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Agricultural Advisory Council, which brings feedback from the agricultural community to Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, will meet April 13 at the Nittany Lion Inn on the University Park Campus.

The meeting's morning session will feature a discussion of public policy issues concerning the state's agricultural industry. "We hope to share with the college administration our views on the major issues facing agriculture in Pennsylvania," says Earl B. Fink, president of the council.

The Agricultural Advisory Council has 69 member organizations, most of which are trade associations and commodity groups representing various segments of the agricultural business community. To broaden the range of viewpoints included in the discussion, representatives of more than 90 additional industry groups have been invited to participate.

"From nutrient management to economic development, our college is involved in public policy issues," says Dr. Lamartine Hood, dean of the college. "We are committed to become even more involved in examining, analyzing and helping to shape policies related to food, agriculture and natural resources."

Because the concerns of a dairy farmer may differ from those of a food processor or timber harvester, delegates will split into five focus groups.

One group will examine general agricultural interests. The others will emphasize food science, animal production, food crops and non-food crops. Each group will develop a list of conerns, then the council will establish group consensus about the main concerns on those lists.

"The results will help the college better understand the public policy concerns of a wide range of agricultural interests," says Pat Heuser, director of industry relations in the college. "We then can begin thinking about how we can be helpful in addressing those issues through existing or possibly new activities."

Aimee Eopechino, a Penn State senior majoring in food science who received the council's Bryce Jordan Leadership Award, will address the group at lunch. A new student recruitment video produced by the college also will be shown.

The afternoon session will include the council's business meeting, an update on the college from Dean Hood and others, and an open forum for member discussion. A demonstration of the college's PENpages computer sysem will end the meeting.

Formed in 1961, Penn State's Agricultural Advisory Council meets twice yearly with administrators, faculty and staff of the college to discuss programs, progress in research and education, and significant developments in the college.

The council has sponsored symposia for educators, legislators and other public officials.

For more information about the Agricultural Advisory Council, contact Pat Heuser at (814) 863-9646.

Miss Magic Flair Is Grand At Spring Holstein Show

Barbara Reisinger said that Flair has been doing well in the show ring, especially since freshening last August. In the September Pa. Fall Championship show, she was grand champion, and also won the state futurity.

That same week, she was shown in the Eastern National Holstein show and stood second overall.

Earlier, at the Pa. Holstein Southeastern Championship, she also won her class and was grand champion.

As far as production, Falir is currently milking about 95 pounds per day and is projected to about 27,000 pounds of milk on a 305-day lactation. Her component percentages have been running about 3.3 percent fat and 3 percent protein.

Her dam was owned by Barbara Reisinger, and when Reisinger left her family's farm several years ago, she worked out a deal with friend Russell Miller, Heidi's father, that Russell would get half interest in Finesse, a calf at the time, in return for his care for her.

In the meantime, Finesse (twice reserve All-Pennsylvania), was bred by Heidi and Barbara to Romandale Magic, and Flair was produced.

Russell kept has kept Flair until she was 2-year-old and then Barbara brought her home to Carlisle.

Donald and Barbara Reisinger live in Carlisle and Barbara has been herdsperson for James and Judy McClure, who the on which they live farm, for about seven years.

"I feel great," Barbara said about Flair's win. "I'm very attatched to her. She's like a pet. She's really easy to work with. I enjoy showing her and I'm really glad she won."

But Flair's showing career is only starting for the year. This coming week, she is to be heading for Syracuse, N.Y. for the Northeast International Holstein show. She showed there as a 2-year-old, the same year she was nominated All-American. Flair's next appearance in Pennsylvania will probably be at the Southcentral Holstein Show, Barbara said.

Gor-Wood-D Farms, of Mansfield, well-known for having dozens of Excellent cows in its herd for a number of years, was named premier breeder and exhibitor, but failed to take any of the top awards.

The reserve grand champion of the show was a senior 3-year-old, Lyn-Haven Inspiration Joy, owned and bred by Oren Claypoole, of Worthington. Joy was sired by Hanoverhill Inspriation out of dam Lyn-Haven Ultimate Lucy-ET.

In the youth division of the show, the grand champion was EsBern Blackstar Mar Moe, a 4-year-old Blackstar daughter, bred, owned and shown by Olivia Courtney, of EsBern Dairy Farms in Mansfield. Moe placed 10th in her class overall, but was strong enough to take the top place among animals exhibited by junior-aged exhibitors.

The reserve grand champion Holstein in the youth division was Daview Mark Gina, a 5-year-old shown by Jennifer Davis, of Leesport.

In the junior animal competition, James Burdette of Windy-Knoll-View Farm in Mercersburg, showed the champion open class winner, Windy-Knoll-View Prism-ET, a fall calf.

The reserve junior champion animal was MS Clintdale Raider Patches, a fall yearling heifer shown by David Miller, son of David and Barbara Miller, of Greensburg.

In the youth division, the junior champion was a fall yearling heifer, Ro-Meyer Hevenly Lincoln, a Hanoverhill Lincoln-ET daughter, shown by Megan Meyers, of St. Thomas.

The reserve champion junior animal in the youth division was a fall calf, Tri-Day Adeen, bred and owned by David Day, son of Curtis and Anne Day, of Tri-Day Farms in Shippensburg. She was a Marcrest Encore daughter out of Bendy-Brook Odyssey Favorite.

In the youth competition of the state spring Holstein show, from the left, Jennifer Bashore, Lebanon County dairy princess, presents a rosette and award to Megan Myers who shows the junior champion Holstein of the youth division, while David Day holds the halter of his reserve junior champion and Marci Harnish, alternate state dairy princess, presents his rosette and award.

From the left, Lebanon County Dairy Princess Jennifer Bashore, presents trophies to Olivia Courtney who holds the halter of her grand and senior champion Holstein of the youth division competition, while Jennifer Davis holds the halter of her reserve grand champion Holstein and Marci Harnish, state alternate dairy princess, presents trophies and ribbons.

Bedford Farmers Hold Banquet

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — "Too often we are so shackled by the negatives, we fail to see the positives," Keith Eckel, president of Pennsylvania Farm Bureau told the members of the Bedford County Farmers' Association, at its annual spring banquet, held recently at the Northern Bedford High School, in Bedford.

Eckel quoted an agricultural expert who, in the early part of the century, declared that the American farmers could never grow enough food to feed the growing population. "They will not be able to produce enough feed to feed the horses it will take to grow crops just for them, let alone the people."

A negative prediction proven wrong, Eckel said.

"And," Eckel said, "we will see more positive changes in agriculture from the 20th century to the 21st than we did from the 19th to the 20th."

Eckel said he firmly believes that the American farmer produces the best of all foods in the world and he has tremendous faith in the future of marketing these foods.

He said the opening of world trade will have a tremendous impact on the exportation of food.

"Our main concerns will be with the elitists," Eckel said. "The animal rights groups, the food safety advocates, they all want a perfect type of world based on emotional decisions."

"Farmers today are being shackled by regulations and potential regulations. But, responsibility should not cripple our productivity.

"Today," said Eckel, "the American farmer should be proud of the fact that they feed all of the 250,000,000 people in the country, export 35 percent of their product, and do it on less farm land than was ever before available. That is an envious statement for any industry.

"Today consumers are spending less than 12 percent of their income for food which is a drop of 25 percent in the last 10 years.

"Talk about health care!" Eckel said, waving his hands. "Proper nutrition is the number one step in any health care program. Someone is missing that point. And, while health care costs have increased 40 percent, food has declined.

"The success of the American farmer has allowed us to pay for the higher quality health care we have in this country."

Eckel also urged Bedford County members to support the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and to get more members.

On the same note, Rod McKenrick, Region 3 Organization director suggested volunteers going door to door to obtain members.

State Director Howard Shaulis said there are presently 23,000 members in the commonwealth.

"We make up 2 percent of the population but we have a lot of clout," he said.

Norman Sollenberger presented the legislative report and urged farmers to make themselves heard in Harrisburg. "We need to speak out against strangling rules and regulations," he said.

The meeting was organized and chaired by Ken Mowry, president of the Bedford County Association.

In other business, Amy Mearkle, Bedford County dairy princess made a plea for candidates for the annual princess contest.

Other officers who attended included Fred Claycomb, vice president, Betty O'Neal, secretary, and Pauline Yoder, treasurer.

Wayne Extension Celebrates 75th

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Wayne County Cooperative Extension celebrates 75 years of providing research-based information to the citizens of Wayne County this year.

To mark this occasion, the Wayne County Extension staff and board members are inviting everyone to an open house at the Extension office in the basement of the Wayne County Courthouse in Honesdale, on Thursday, April 14 from 4 to 6 p.m.

Extension agents will have exhibits set up to highlight educational programs they are currently working on. There will also be free information available on such topics as gardening, parenting, the new food guide pyramid and food labels, the 4-H program, food safety, water quality, Lyme Disease and much more.

For the history buffs there will be a slide show featuring many folks from the community at Extension programs from the 30's, 40's, 50's and 60's. Also on hand will be scrapbooks filled with pictures and articles of past Extension activities to help folks take a walk down memory lane.

Refreshments, including an anniversary cake, fresh fruits and vegetables, punch and coffee, will be served.

Benefit Sale

"A lot of people put a great deal of time into this event," said Walt Wurster, dairy agent in Chester County. "We wouldn't have been able to do this without them."

Another general auction is scheduled May 21 in Downingtown, according to Wurster. More information will be available at a later date.

"The Chester County extension office would like to give a big 'thank you' to all who donated animals and other supplies, and to those who got it done," said Wurster.

Farm Bureau Sponsors Candidates School

UTICA, N.Y. — An intense political workshop, "How to Win an Election," is slated for April 14-15 at the Holiday Inn (Business Park) in Utica. The event is sponsored by the New York Farm Bureau and presented by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

According to Kelli Owens, NYFB's Political Education and Action Coordinator, "Farm Bureau's campaign management workshop is designed to assist candidates for public office in how to reach rural parts of their district. The program was developed by the staff of Farm Bureau and some of America's best political consultants."

Owens said. "Though Farm Bureau does not endorse candidates for public office, we highly encourage farmers and other rural residents to get involved in the process — no matter what party they're in."

The two-day program includes the following topics:

April 14 (9:30 a.m. - 8:30 p.m.)

The Candidate . . . Evaluating the Candidate and the Electorate

Familiarizing Yourself with Campaign Laws and Reports

The Issues . . . Selecting the Campaign Theme; Selecting Campaign Issues; Handling the Aggressive Interviewer

The Money . . . Budget Preparation; Raising Money Using a Finance Committee; Government Reports.

April 15 (8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.)

The Organization . . . Campaign Structure; Role of Campaign Manager; Use of Support Committee; Headquarters Selection and Operation; Working with News Media; Promotion Activities; Volunteer Recruitment and Coordination; Allies and Coalitions.

Campaign Strategy . . . Identifying the Voters; Targeting Precincts; Targeting Special Interest Groups; Developing a Calendar to Win; Using Polls; Election Day Activities.

The cost of the program is $100 for Farm Bureau members and $165 for nonmembers. The fee includes three meals, breaks, and materials (overnight lodging is extra). The deadline to register is April 8.

To register, call Pam Rafferty, New York Farm Bureau, at (518) 436-8495.

Shown: Surge Alamo Belt-Drive 2800 Pump Package Complete With L-3 Oiler

Buy only the capacity you need now and expand your CFM as your requirements change. The Surge Alamo Vaccum Pump model 1400 PLUS produces 50 CFM (ASME) and can be converted to a model 2200 PLUS that delivers 78 CFM, or a model 2800 rated at 100 CFM by changing the motor and belt-drive package. Herd Catchup Program Offers Discounts

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — The Holstein Association Board has created an opportunity for breeders who have gotten behind on registry work to catch-up their herd at discounted fees.

The catch-up program is expected to result in added animals for the national genetic pool, making more Holsteins eligible for classification, pedigrees and other performance records.

The new program provides special prices for herd owners who register at least one overage female plus all eligible female animals under 24 months of age in the herd.

Registry applications for this program will be accumulated and sent to the Brattleboro home office by Holstein Association field representatives or classifiers.

Eligibility Criteria

Eligibility criteria require that a breeder must be state and national member of Holstein associations; have a minimum registry of one overage female animal; and register all eligible female animals under 24 months in the herd.

Reduced fees are effective until Dec. 31, 1994; Registry applications will be sent to Brattleboro by national association staff. Payment plans may be arranged on a special case-by-case basis.

Fees

Fees are set so the females over 23 months are $50; animals 12-23 months are $20; and animals under 12 months are the normal fee.

For information on the new herd catch-up program, call Member Service toll free 1-800-952-5200 at the Holstein Association.

FORCE CONTROLS. In Developing FORCE soil insecticide, Zeneca Ag Products simulated and improved on the powerful chemistry found in chrysanthemum flowers. The result is the first pyrethroid insecticide designed for soil application.

Because of this unique chemistry, FORCE ranks low in mammalian toxicity, which means very low hazard to humans. In addition, the low water solubility and soil mobility of FORCE greatly reduces any risk of leaching or groundwater contamination.

CUTWORM APPLICATION RATES. Apply FORCE at 8 to 10 oz. per 1,000 linear row feet. The lbs./acre equivalent rates are:

6.5 lbs. per acre on 40" rows	7.7 lbs. per acre on 34" rows
6.9 lbs. per acre on 38" rows	8.2 lbs. per acre on 32" rows
7.3 lbs. per acre on 36" rows	8.7 lbs. per acre on 30" rows

FORCE may be applied in a T-band in front of the press wheels, in a band behind the press wheels, or in-furrow.

No other soil insecticide controls as much as FORCE® when it comes to performance against a wide variety of pests. Not only does FORCE control rootworms, it outperforms Lorsban 85% to 76% on cutworms according to 1992 field trials. Counter can't even touch cutworms. FORCE also works significantly better than Counter or Lorsban against wireworms and white grubs.

FORCE works in all weather conditions and won't interact with the rescue herbicides Accent and Beacon. It's easy to see why FORCE is a generation ahead—for the generations ahead.

Mifflin Farmers Hold Annual Meeting

LEWISTOWN (Mifflin Co.) — Over 40 members, friends, and guests of the Mifflin County Farmers' Association met the end of March for their annual spring meeting at Hoss's Steak and Sea House in Lewistown.

President Stan Dunk welcomed those attending and then introduced Governmental Relations Director Mark Ellinger. Ellinger listed the issues being addressed in Harrisburg and Washington, such as wetlands legislation, farmland preservation, amendments to the Pa. Seasonal Farm Labor Act, the bottle bill, GATT, the reorganization of USDA, health care, deductions for the self-employed, and the Clean Water Act. He also announced a tentative date for the county's Measure the Candidates night.

Regional Organization Director Joe Buck reported on membership. The Mifflin County Farmers' Association presently has 332 members. Membership chairman is Ken Loht.

Prior to hearing a report from Guy Donaldson, vice president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Member Relations Director Elrose Glick presented proposals for by-law changes, including a name change to the Mifflin County Farm Bureau. Action was put on hold because attendance was two members short of the 20 needed for a quorum.

Guy Donaldson, a fruit farmer from Adams County, said encouraging involvement from the group in attendance is a little like preaching to the choir. "You are here because you are already involved," he said.

Donaldson said legislators in Harrisburg and Washington look forward to meeting with the farmers' association because the organization has grown and is well respected. He encouraged members to stay informed on issues and to garner membership support from the non-farm sector through issues that affect them as well, such as property rights and tax reform. He said the organization should give the non-farm sector a chance to buy into the process.

Donaldson said farmers comprise less than 2 percent of the population and that Pennsylvania lost 6,000 farms in the past 10 years. "We need to stay strong for the survival of the industry. We cannot let others speak for us in agriculture," he said.

Dealers Celebrate Centennial

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) - The 100 year-old Purina Mills, Inc., St. Louis, MO, started its second century with a new owner. And David L. Abbott, executive vice precident and chief operations officer, said he couldn't be more pleased with the outcome of the buy-out that took the animal nutrition giant away from British Petroleum and put it in the hands of the Sterling Group. With input from Sterling, management and employees of Purina own 35 percent of the company, and the remaining 65 percent is owned by individual investors and associates of Sterling.

Abbott made his statements at the North Atlantic Area Dealers Centennial meeting Tuesday afternoon. The dealers were feted to a buffet lunch complete with a company 100-years birthday cake.

"We went through a process that involved 18 months of rumors, and 100 companies who requested information about Purina Mills," Abbott said. "Twenty-six companies made offers to buy, and finally 10 companies were selected to review financial and legal information.

"Of all the possible companies who had an interest in buying Purina, the Sterling Group was the most comfortable by far to the Purina people. They have a philosophy a lot like we do," Abbott said. "They believe in buying market leaders in industries that are mature and consolidating in the U.S. Then they want to grow our position to be part of that consolidation, not stand by and watch it as we had done for so many years.

"It's been a long time since Purina Mills has been in an acquisition mode. In the past we have talked about what plants to close and how we can draw back to be more efficient. Now we have new owners who have ideas of expansion."

On of the reasons the new owners are so pleased is because performance of the compnay has already exceeded expectations with an incredible performance in 1993. Volume surpassed five million tons of feed, the highest company level since 1983. Profits were strong. And the first quarter of this year is even better. In March the company exceeded last year by 20,000 tons. And this year to date Purina is 55,000 tons ahead of last year in the first quarter. The company showed growth in every single category of feed. So the relationship with the new owners is very positive.

Roger Struck, American regional director, gave the background of the company. William H. Danforth founded the company in 1894 and is credited with the philosphy that has been the fabric of the company for over a century. He always preached that you should be your own self, at your very best, all the time.

Celebrate Centennial

By 1973 the one millionth person had visited the research farm. And Danforth's principles of a four square life, stand tall, think tall, smile tall, and live tall, had captured the imagination of his time. The call to "aspire nobly, adventure daringly, and serve humbly," pervade the company's image even today. Danforth died in 1955.

One of Purina's local dealers, Anthony's Feed Mill, in Strausstown, Berks County, is also celebrating their 100th birthday this year, and Marilyn and Donald Anthony were honored at the meeting. The mill that has been in existence since 1772 was purchased by Donald's grandfather William in 1894, and his father took over in the 1920's. Donald said in the early days the mill only ground grist with power from a water wheel, and no commercial feed was made until the 1930's. The mill race is still part of the beautiful landscape to the millstead and was used up to about 1950. Photo slides of the flowers and flowering trees was shown at the meeting, and Donald said his father enjoyed horticulture, and "I do too."

For those involved in the company, the history is captivating, and the future looks bright. This small commission company that William Danforth started on the St. Louis river front in 1894 has become the largest animal nutrition company in the nation. And based on the reports to dealers this week, Purina Mills will continue to be a respected leader in the agribusiness world for many additional centennials.

Colored Breed Associations Cooperate

BELOIT, Wis. — During April and May, representatives of the Brown Swiss, Guernsey and Milking Shorthorn associations are to be travelling throughout the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic states in a cooperative effort of type evaluation.

Announced earlier this year, the leadership of the three breed associations have been working at reducing individual association costs by sharing resources.

The first effort is to have cattle evaluators be qualified to rate animals of all three breeds equally well.

In addition, while doing the field work, the breed representatives are to be available to work with dairymen and answer questions regarding breed programs for registry including grade identification, corrective mating, and marketing.

For more information, call the Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders Association of the U.S.A. in Beloit, Wis., at (608) 365-4474; the American Milking Shorthorn Association, headquarters located also in Beloit at (608) 365-3332; or the American Guernsey Association, located in Reynoldsburg, Ohio, at (614) 864-2409.

Children In Peril As Romania Struggles With Democracy

ANDY ANDREWS

BLAINSPORT (Lancaster Co.) — It's a horror story made even more horrible because it's all true.

Imagine a country in which it is a crime to have less than five children. Then imagine a revolution, and the people having to face the realities of lack of decent food, shelter, or education. Then imagine people giving up their children, en masse — up to half a million babies, toddlers, some almost teenagers — to an indifferent state.

Then imagine a country that luerally herds the children, like cattle, into orphanages. And then treats them like they are nothing but refuse.

Through an emotionally intense series of slides presented at the home of Vernon and Allegra Leininger recently, about 50 members of the Ephrata Area Young Farmers Association (EAYFA) and friends gathered to witness the horrible events happening in a country called Romania, a former Soviet Union republic in southeast Europe that borders the Black Sea.

Mike Brubaker, EAYFA adviser, who documented his trip last April to Romania, presented slides about the Romanian way of life. The trip was a humanitarian project sponsored by Christian Aid Ministries.

According to Brubaker, In December 1989, Romania's President Nicolae Ceausescu was overthrown and executed at the brink of the dissolution of the Soviet Union. Romania remains a country which is trying, in fits and starts, to become democratic.

Under the Ceausescu dictatorship, thousands of people were torn from hundreds of years of farm ownership and forced into the cities. Ceausescu, in his own egotistical agenda of making the country appear good to the West, uprooted whole forests and converted large areas into completely open farmland. Meanwhile, during his reign of terror, he imposed stiff fines on families that had less than five children. Birth control and abortion were outlawed.

After communism fell, and the dictator was overthrown and executed, the country went into a tailspin, economically and physically. Many people could no longer afford to feed themselves, let alone their large families.

So the people "returned" their children to the state. The state, bankrupt, with meager supplies and resources, set up a large number of orphanages, where the children, many of them "irrecoverable," today are forced to lie in wait.

The conditions in some of the state-run orphanages "really are just deplorable," said Brubaker.

The diseased children are forced to remain in cribs, many until they turn 10 years old. They are offered little, if any, food. Clothing is rarely changed. Their version of "potty training," according to Brubaker, has the toddlers sitting on dirty containers for two to four hours each morning. Toddlers lie in their own feces, their own vomit. Many of them have never been held or touched. Children are confined, six or eight often to a single bed. Their only contact is with "caregivers" that "discipline" them, tying some to the crib- or bedposts, ignoring the rest.

Brubaker showed a presentation offered by the local public television station about the state orphanages. One such showed the orphanage, The Negu Voda Home for the Irrecoverable. In the orphanage, there is constant crying and screaming. The children can't speak right, and many withdraw, catatonic, into their own worlds, holding tenuously to life. Some rock themselves or do anything for stimulation or to simply feel human.

The children have never seen the outside. Many of them simply fail to grow.

After learning of these conditions, a ministry group came in to offer help — including basic food and medical supplies, education, testing, and time — to the children.

On the television program, which included extensive, detailed, intense descriptions of the conditions in one such orphanage, a man befriended an 8-year-old girl who remained constantly in a crib. He picked her up, held her closely, and kissed her, promising to show her, once in her life, something she had never seen before. He fed her, bundled her up, and showed her a place of untold wonders — the outside.

She looked about, mesmerized by a world she'd never seen.

Since the country has opened its doors, according to Brubaker, many ministries such as Christian Aid have visited the country. Supplies are being sent daily, through the efforts of volunteers and donors.

Adoption of the children by Western countries is almost impossible, according to Brubaker. Because Romania is now democratic, there is no such thing as political asylum for Romanians in the U.S., he said. The U.S. has essentially closed its borders to adoption of the children.

Brubaker took the trip to offer his agronomic expertise on the farming aspects during the mission operation. He stayed at the Romanian home of the Ben Lapp family, who operates a dairy in a village called Suceava.

According to Brubaker, through the work of Christian Aid Ministries, a special orphanage was set up to help the abandoned children. These children are picked by Christian Aid personnel and are kept in the orphanage, with the best care that the ministry can offer, until they turn 18.

Brubaker himself took along "care packages" for the children in one state orphanage, which included cookies and coloring books and other items. He also brought along caps for the children, which really made them smile.

Brubaker spoke about one boy who had not smiled at all at the orphanage. But the caregiver was "dumbfounded," said Brubaker, when all of a sudden the child "just began to sing." Brubaker played the song to the audience.

Brubaker said that Christian Aid Ministries utilizes the majority of its donations for the people in need. Only a small percentage of the donations are used for administrative purposes. "It's a fabulous organization," he said.

Brubaker detailed his experiences with the long flight over there and the living conditions he equates with this country at the turn of the century. Because of the sudden change from communism to democracy, it will take a great deal of time for them to be able to achieve a decent standard of living.

For the children of Romania, he said, "it's a very desperate situation." Many remain homeless, with nowhere to go.

Out in the countryside, Brubaker said the people "are exceptionally nice." He said that the farms that are not state-run are parceled out according to individual claims. According to Brubaker, those wanting to farm have to provide proof of past ownership and even then fight it out with the local and state authorities.

Once given rights to a property, usually measuring perhaps 20 to 40 yards across by a half a mile to a mile long, a farmer stakes it out and begins to plow — using horse- or hand-driven methods to cultivate, plant, and harvest.

When seed is available, some corn is grown. Many grow sunflowers and try to market the seeds.

Whatever they intend to grow, they must travel quite a distance, some back and forth for hours at a time. Sleeping on the field is frowned upon.

The ground can produce a good crop, if treated right, he said. "It has great-looking soil."

He said, in that country, there is "no sense of time." It is nothing for a farmer to travel three hours each way to work the fields. There are no televisions, radios, magazines, or newspapers, and contact with other countries remains isolated.

Brubaker slept out in the fields some nights, using nothing more than old corn seed bags for pillows and covers. There is a constant wind blowing, and he used some of the seed bags to act as a windbreak.

On one farm he visited, Brubaker, tired and hungry, shared the hospitality of a local farmer. In gratitude, Brubaker handed the farmer a pocket knife. The farmer hurried to clear some space on a shelf — a space occupied by precious family heirlooms — for the knife.

There is no new construction. People make do with what little they have.

The only tractors around were several tractors manufactured by Universal, in the country. Hardly any of them worked, according to Brubaker.

In one case, Brubaker saw that workers were spraying large amounts of insecticides. And the workers were not adequately protected.

The only herbicide in use is atrazine, if they are lucky enough to have some, according to Brubaker. The number one problem is quackgrass, which can destroy up to 100 percent of the harvest if not treated. If a herbicide is available, it is extremely difficult to find a clean supply of water to apply it.

Once, Brubaker had to pay a fine for not having a license to drive in Romania. The fine was several thousand "lei," which converted to only a few U.S. dollars.

In a trip to a village, Brubaker showed some of the conditions that even the best of them live in.

Brubaker visited a village in which a family kept some kids in a corn crib, for lack of a babysitter. He also drank water from a "typical well," which may have been heavily polluted.

In one case, a family, supported by a father that works at an auto assembly plant in Detroit, does well by most standards. The average income is about $20-$30 a month in Romania. Making $40 to $50 in U.S. equivalent would be like earning an above average salary here.

Attempts to unite the father with the children in Romania proved very difficult because of the inability to declare political asylum anymore in the U.S. It's easier and a lot less hassle to simply sponsor programs over there, according to Brubaker.

Most farming in Romania is primitive, dating to the turn of the century. Problems with weed control, obtaining seed, harvesting, and marketing abound.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Have you ever spent a lot of time hunting some particular item? I like to think of myself as rather organized. You see, I keep track of everything that I put in the freezers and everything that I take out and use. That way I will know what is in short supply and can plant accordingly this spring.

A grocery list is prepared every week and I only buy what is on the list. I'm also responsible for putting notices in our church bulletin and newsletter on a particular day. Our calendar is kept up to date so that we don't forget an appointment.

The point of all these facts is that I've misplaced some slides that my cousin took some 40 years ago. I wanted to show them to a friend of hers and now I cannot find them. I've looked high and low in all of our closets and drawers. Why, I even pulled down the steps to the attic and went through every box up there. Actually, I have not seen them since we moved into our new house two years ago. It is so frustrating to spend hours looking when I'd sooner be doing something else.

My braided rug has finally been started. It is rather late in the season to find wool in stores and so I was able to get a piece of red material and one of blue material from a friend who also uses used garments to make rugs.

At least in hunting for the slides, I came across other things that I had not seen for a while. There was an aerial view of my birthplace and another big oval picture of a great uncle. Also discovered were some baby clothes from long ago and some clothes that my grandfather wore when he was a boy. You never know what will be in the bottom of a big box.

- WE UPS DAILY -

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Mysterious little things poke out of the ground in April.

A lot of them turn out to be weeds. But others prove to be considerably more pleasant or productive surprises.

"I have green things coming up around the house," confides a dear friend, having just acquired her first home. "But I have no idea what they are."

As the blanket of snow eased away into meltdown, cheery green almost instantly pushed up in its place. Real growth became apparent the morning The Farmer pointed out the window at part of the heifer herd on the meadow hillside. Black and white muzzles were all tight against the pasture grass.

Spring grazing had begun with the "girls" were busy nosing for the choicest, most tender new shoots. Probably garlic, if they can find it. Heifers favor a little flavoring in their food when they can find it, just like we do.

First signs of growth around the yard usually show in the bare soil of a sheltered, sun-warmed corner near the basement porch. Slender, dark-green crocus foliage emerges early, often shoving the first blossom up through soggy patches of snow.

Enjoying the unexpected show of color there, I only vaguely recall sticking in crocus bulbs that had been unearthed from one of the borders while weeding. Their tiny blooms open wide to early April sunshine, snuggled close to the ground as if for warmth, but petals sprawled like bodies on a beach, "catching rays." One larger, more stately purple bloom seems out of place.

Flanking the crocus are clusters of lime-colored primrose leaves and lavendar-green columbine foliage. And nearby, radish seeds sprout atop the dark, moist soil, my concession to an earlier, 70-degree afternoon when it became simply impossible not to plant something — anything! — in the ground.

Found poking up through the residue of dried grass that had overgrown part the asparagus patch was a row of hollyhock seedlings. Memory jogged, I did recall planting the pack of seeds there and tending the resulting infant perennials. These rugged, old-fashioned flowers, patron symbol of the Society of Farm Women, hold a special place in my heart.

Single-bloom hollyhocks that grew at my childhood home were often denuded of their blossoms for the sake of dollmaking. A wide-open bloom forms the doll's wide skirt, while a tight bud, showing some color, is used for the head.

And on the day of our daughter's early July wedding five years ago, several maroon double hollyhock plants, shared by a friend as seedlings, had reached their peak of bloom. They added considerable color for the lawn reception we hosted and promptly earned themselves a place in the floral scheme of things around here.

We recognize the sprouts of daffodils and daylilies, tulips, iris, peonies and various other perennials reappearing in the beds and borders, and wait with eagerness to see what mysterious newcomers turn up beside them.

And in the springs that have again opened up and trickle among the swampy mess that passes for a back yard, I fully expect to some morning find yet another volunteer green sprout poking through.

Spring's Bounty Asparagus, Dandelion, Rhubarb

Try topping tender, hot spears of asparagus with freshly grated Parmesan cheese, crisp bacon and green onion for a great way to welcome spring.

For people who love asparagus, dandelion, and rhubarb, the growing season just isn't long enough. The availability of these plants is somewhat extended if you shop at a large supermarket or farmer's market that has the produced shipped in. But many folks still rely on gathering their own dandelions from their yards and the asparagus and rhubarb from their garden plots.

Did you know that home-grown rhubarb is more tart than that grown in a hot house. When buying rhubarb, select fresh, firm stems. Look for bright pink or red colors. Avoid stems that are too large (it will be hollow and fibrous) or too thin (it will lack flavor).

Rhubarb is also easy to freeze. Trim and wash the stalks and cut into 1- to 2-inch chunks. Place in a covered flat pan in the freezer until frozen. Pack in moisture proof bags and return to freezer.

When shopping for asparagus, look for purple-tinged, tight-budded spears. They should be even-sized, at least one-half inch in diameter, and at least two-thirds green. Avoid any stalk with a large, woody, white base. Asparagus is best cooked the same day it is purchased, but it will keep three to four days in the refrigerator. To store asparagus, remove the very end of the stalks and store upright in one-inch of water and covered with plastic wrap.

Dandelions are an excellent source of vitamin A, a half cup supplying more than enough of the daily requirement. Good quality is characterized by fresh green appearance and comparatively large, tender leaves. Do not pick greens that have been sprayed with weed killer.

2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine crust ingredients, pat into 10-inch pie plate. Set aside. Combine rhubarb layer ingredients; toss lightly and pour into crust. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, prepare cream layer by beating cream cheese and sugar until fluffy. Beat in eggs one at a time, then pour over hot rhubarb layer. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until almost set. Combine topping ingredients; spread over hot layers. Chill and serve.

For cooks who like rhubarb and the challenge of a baking contest, the annual Rhubarb Festival is the place to go on May 21. The festival is held at Kitchen Kettle Village in Intercourse.

The purpose of the festival is to pay tribute to rhubarb the forgotten vegetable. This festival certainly does wonderful things with rhubarb, from serving fabulous dishes using rhubarb to unique fun and games made with the long reddish-green stems.

For details on the rhubarb pie contest and the festival activities, look for the Rhubarb Festival article in this section.

Please pre-register for the pie baking contest by calling Kitchen Kettle Village at (717) 768-8261 or 1-800-732-3538.

Discovering Spring With A Child

I don't know about you, but I've been looking for signs of spring any place I can. I had a bet with my family that we would have snow on our property on April 1, I won. In fact, we took pictures to document it, but now that I won the bet, I'm ready to usher in spring with flurry. One of the most enjoyable ways I've found to do this is to explore this season outdoors with a child. A youngster's sense of discovery can really inspire the adults around her.

First, go on a walk around your farm and yard and look for the baby animals that have been born recently — lambs, robins, ducklings, foals. Watch them play. Talk about how the mother and father animals care for their young. Follow this up with a story time where you read about animals, or browse through magazines and cut out pictures of baby animals to make your own story book. Help birds build their nests. Cut bright colored pieces of yarn into six-inch lengths. Place these in the crotch of a tree with other nest-building items like cotton fluff, string or small strips of fabric. After several days, canvas the area with a child to see if together you can spy any birds that are using your materials to create a home for their babies.

If you have a pond or marsh nearby, wander by and listen for the frogs to croak. As the warm weather continues, revisit the spot to look for tadpoles. Catching a few in a bucket so a child can examine them closely will make you a winner in his eyes. While you're exploring, take a shoelace (or for less hassle, a 16-20 inch piece of string) and make a circle with it on the ground. Challenge the child to find as many different things in that circle as she can. Count how many items you find.

Encourage your child to learn about the trees on your property. Take paper and crayons along and do a bark rubbing. Check out the branches each time you pass by to see if the buds are opening into blossoms and leaves. Are all trees alike? What makes them different? As you explore, look up, look down, look around. When is the last time you carefully checked out a drying mud puddle to search for animal or insect tracks?

Don't let the rain showers keep your family from venturing outside. Dress in boots and raincoats. Walk, splash, laugh, and listen. A rainy day brings different spring sounds to your ear than a sunny day. Ask the child what he hears. Do you hear anything else? Look at the clouds. How quickly are they moving? Be sure to have an ample supply of dry clothes and a drying rack on hand when you return to the house.

Exploring outdoors with a child helps me to discover in a new way some of the amazing patterns of nature that happen every year. And after the long winter we all endured, it's nice to know that flowers still bloom and birds still sing. Happy spring.

You Ask ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? You Answer

In response to readers' questions, this column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for the answers. In the past many readers sent non-cooking requests to Cook's Question Corner, a column located in B 8.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. The concept is the same: When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed as soon as possible in the paper.

Questions and answers for this column should be addressed to You Ask — You Answer, Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

QUESTION — A. Nolt of New Holland would like to know the complete poem that was recited in the 1920s when her father-in-law went to school. The poem contains these lines: The carpenter's house is falling down. The preacher's kids are the worse in town....

QUESTION — Marie Lorah, Box 299 R.D.3, Tamaqua, PA 18252, is looking for water glasses with pictures of owls on them.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Mimi Stoltzfus, Lewisburg, would like a recipe for honey-mustard pretzels such as those sold by Snyders. If we do not receive an answer to this within two weeks, we will drop this request.

QUESTION — Ruth Cantello, Somerset, N.J., would like a recipe for apple cider donuts like those served at Apple Cider Mills. If we do not receive an answer to this within two weeks, we will drop this request.

QUESTION — Helen Kofran would like a recipe for Amish shredded roast beef salad.

QUESTION — Lisa Miller, New Hope, wrote that she and her grandmother found a recipe that called for died apples. She wanted to know how to do it. This sounds like a typographical error to me. It probably should read diced or perhaps dried apples. However, if anyone heard of such a thing as died apples, send the information.

QUESTION — Gerri Rottkamp, West Hempstead, N.Y., asks why her canned crushed tomatoes and sauce are very acid tasting this year. What did she do wrong?

QUESTION — Dorothy Golembieski, Gettysburg, would like a recipe for pineapple jam made with fresh crushed pineapple and Kiefer pears.

QUESTION — Dorothy Golembieski, Gettysburg, would like a recipe for O' Henry candy made with a fondant, rice crispy cereal, and a layer of chocolate on top.

QUESTION — Faye Detter, Mechanicsburg, requests a recipe for schmeircase cheese.

QUESTION — Evelyn Snooks would like a recipe for sweet cauliflower pickles.

QUESTION — Evelyn Snooks would like Thai recipes for sticky rice and a soybean custard to scoop on the sticky rice.

QUESTION — S. Stryker would like a good recipe for cole slaw.

QUESTION — Kathy Szarko, Landisville, purchased a pound of chestnut flour in an Italian Market about a year ago. After a diligent search through cookbooks and asking relatives, she is unable to find any recipes requesting chestnut flour. She vaguely remembers hearing a TV cooking show say that the flour is naturally sweet tasting and can be used in pastry recipes.

QUESTION — Jean Mitchell, Lewisburg, would like a recipe for milk pie.

QUESTION — Mrs. Robert Wagner, Bloomsburg, would like a recipe for bean and barley soup, the variety that is brown in color.

QUESTION — David Akins, Blairsville, would like to know where to purchase monosodium glutamate.

ANSWER — Amanda Lantz, Lititz, would like a recipe for lemon shoo-fly pie. Thanks to Linda Valentine, Mifflinburg; F. Wilson, Md.; Josephine Matenus, Dallas; and others for sending recipes.

Lemon Shoo Fly Pie

Crumbs:
- 3 cups flour
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup shortening
- 1 teaspoon baking soda

Mix and set aside.

Liquid:
- Juice and rind of 2 lemons
- 1 egg
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup molasses
- 1½ cups boiling water

Combine above ingredients and mix well until well blended. Pour evenly into 3 unbaked crusts. Sprinkle the crumb mixture evenly on top of each filled pie.

Bake at 375 degrees for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees for 30 minutes or more. Makes two 9-inch and one 7-inch pie. Freezes well.

ANSWER — M. Hart, Newton, N.J., wanted hot water pie crust recipes that used beaten egg whites and one cup boiling water and a recipe for a pat-in-a pan pie crust. She saw these recipes demonstrated on a TV program. Thanks to Nan Wilcox, Covington; A. Nolt, New Holland; Thoda Conover, Gettysburg; Michel S., and others for sending recipes that are credited to Marcia Adams who did a cooking series on PBS. Marcia also has written a cookbook, Cooking from Quilt Country, which our readers highly recommend. The readers said the hot water pie crust does not use beaten egg whites.

Pat-In-The-Pan Pie Crust
- 1½ cups plus 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- 3 tablespoons cold milk

Place the flour, sugar, and salt in the pie pan and mix with your fingers until blended in a measuring cup, combine the oil and milk and beat with a fork until creamy. Pour all at once over the flour mixture. Mix with a fork until the flour mixture is completely moistened. Pat the dough with your fingers first up the sides of the plate, then across the bottom. Flute the edges.

Shell is now ready to be filled. If you are preparing a shell to fill later, or your recipe requires a prebaked crust, preheat the oven to 425 degrees. Prick the surface of the pastry with a fork and bake 15 minutes, checking often, and pricking more if needed.

Variation: For a 10-inch shell, use 2 cups all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt; ⅔ cup vegetable oil, 3 tablespoons milk.

This recipe can only be used for one-crust pies — You can't double the recipe and roll out a top crust. The mixture is just too tender to transfer onto the pie.

Hot Water Pie Crust
- 1 cup lard, very soft
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup boiling water
- 3 cups all-purpose flour

Place the lard and salt in a large bowl and beat a bit with a tablespoon until the lard is completely softened. You can also do this with an electric hand beater. Pour boiling water over the lard and blend again. Let this mixture cool to room temperature, but stir often so water and lard won't separate. Stir in flour, and form the mixture into a ball. If you use your hands, do it quickly. Chill for several hours or overnight, then let the cold dough sit out a room temperature for about 30 minutes before rolling out. If you're preparing a shell to fill later or if your recipe requires a prebaked crust, preheat the oven to 425 degrees. Roll out a portion of the dough to ⅛ -inch thickness. Transfer the crust to a pie pan and pat it in snugly. Prick the surface of the pastry all over with a fork. Bake for 15 minutes or until golden. Check it often and if necessary prick more to release air bubbles. If the crust begins to slip down the sides of the pan, pat it up with the back of a fork.

ANSWER — Fay Werner, Tevoli, N.Y., wanted a rice pudding recipe, in which the sugar and beaten eggs were combined and set aside while the milk was heated and the rice cooked before combined. Thanks to Arlene Miller, Leesport; Fern Forry, Bernville; Wendy Graves, Millville, and others for sending recipes.

Top-of-the-Stove Creamy Rice Pudding
- 4 cups cream or any combination of milk and cream)
- 4 cups milk
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons minute premium rice
- 3 eggs
- 1½ cups sugar

Combine the cream, milk, salt, and rice in a heavy saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring to prevent sticking. Cover and simmer over low heat until rice is soft (20-30 minutes) stirring occasionally. Remove from heat.

Beat together eggs and sugar, and stir this mixture into the hot cooked rice mixture. Return to medium heat, stirring constantly until the mixture is thickened (do not overcook).

Rice Pudding
- 1 quart milk
- ¼ cup rice (not instant)
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine the milk and rice and cook until the rice is soft, about one hour. (Fern uses a 2-quart double boiler). Beat two eggs and sugar until foamy.

Add beaten eggs and sugar to rice and cook until thickened. Add vanilla.

Rice Pudding
- ¾ cup uncooked rice
- 6 cups milk
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 rounded teaspoon cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

In top of double boiler, combine rice and 4 cups milk. Cook slowly, covered, until rice is done (45 minutes to 1 hour). Combine eggs, sugar, ½ cup milk, and cornstarch and set aside.

When rice is done, transfer to a large, heavy saucepan and add 1½ cups milk. Heat until very hot, but do not boil. Gradually add egg mixture to rice, stirring constantly until it starts to boil. Remove from heat and stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla. You may top with cinnamon or nutmeg.

Consuming Thoughts

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension
Home Economist
For Berks Co.

Spring cleaning means getting organized — having a yard sale with what you no longer need and finding convenient spots for the things you do need. If your lifestyle is at all hectic, the way you organize your home can have a direct impact on your productivity and your family's happiness.

One of the best places to start the organization process is in the kitchen. Making the space you have work better, especially in the kitchen, is an important need in today's home planning. You can begin by removing utensils or dishes from your kitchen drawers and cabinets. Then, sort them into several different categories, according to where they're used.

Dishes, silverware, and cleaning tools belong near the sink. Pots and pans, cooking spices and other cooking utensils should be placed within easy reach of the range. Raw foodstuffs, baking spices and food preparation equipment, such as mixing bowls and measuring cups, belong near the food preparation area.

If you often find yourself searching frantically for the right measuring spoon, a bottle opener or your complete set of corn-on-the-cob holders, here's a simple solution: keep kitchenware sets together by storing them in separate plastic bags or small containers. As you are cleaning the kitchen area, look for dishes, utensils or cutting boards which do not meet food safety standards and dispose of them accordingly. Things to look for include dishes or glassware that are chipped or cracked. Discard knives and other utensils such as cutting boards that are split and have cracks, crevices in which food particles may become lodged.

For a more organized look in your pantry, repackage items such as coffee, flour, sugar, beans, pasta and other dry goods in similar containers such as clear glass canning jars or stackable containers or plastic bags in a storage bin.

A desk in the kitchen can also be a source of clutter if cookbooks, magazines and recipes are not organized. Many of us are cookbook fanatics and we collect more cookbooks than we'll ever use in a lifetime. If storage space is limited in desk area, only store the cookbooks that are used most often in that area and set up another area in the home for storing your entire collection.

Once you've successfully reorganized your kitchen and other rooms in your home, you'll probably find you've got more free time on your hands. So, why not sign up for the Penn State Weight Management classes... or get involved with Cooperative Extension Family Living Advisory Committee... or become a 4-H leader.

The Grasshopper War

MIRIAM TAYLOR WERT
Juniata Co. Correspondent

(Author's note: The story of "The Grasshopper War" has been handed down from generation to generation in the area of Port Royal, Juniata County, Pennsylvania. It is of special interest to me because the battle took place either on ground that my family owns or on ground nearby. Although some folks outside our part of the country refer to the story as an Indian legend, natives of our area feel that it actually took place.

The friendly Tuscarora Indians who remained in the Licking Creek-Tuscarora Creek area when white people settled here told the story as fact, though they used no names and had no written record. As I read the various sketchy accounts and heard them from older local residents, the characters of Wani and Tuksit seemed to come alive for me, and I wanted to write their story.)

Many moons ago two Indian tribes lived in peace near the mouth of the Licking Creek. A village of the Delawares was on one side of the creek, and a village of the Tuscaroras was on the other side.

These tribes had been friends for years. They hunted on the same grounds, sat together around council fires, shared the pipe of peace, and danced the green corn dance together beneath the light of the big, yellow harvest moon. The children of the tribes played together.

Wani was an eight-year-old Delaware boy. He liked to play games with the Tuscaroras and he especially liked to challenge his friend Tuksit in contests of skill and strength. Many times these boys had crossed back and forth over the Licking Creek to spend the day fishing or playing together.

A certain summer day in the early 1700s began as any other peaceful, lazy day. But one small incident took place that would change the lives of the Indians of both tribes. Friends would become enemies, and the peace pipe would no longer be shared.

It began when Wani found the biggest grasshopper he had ever seen. He watched it jump so far that his big black eyes nearly popped from his head! He wanted to keep it as his own, but how? Wani said to himself, "I know, I'll make a leather pouch out of deerskin and punch holes in it so the grasshopper can breathe. Then I'll close it at the top with a drawstring so it can't jump out."

Wani made the pouch and caught the grasshopper. He cared for it and watched it grow bigger and stronger each day.

Finally one day he got in the canoe and went to visit Tuksit to show him the grasshopper and pouch. He bragged about how far the grasshopper could jump.

This was too much for the Tuscarora boy. "Your grasshopper isn't so great," he said. "I'll find one that'll beat it."

Wani replied, "No, you'll never find a better one. You can try, but it won't beat mine."

"I'll have a better one by sundown today," bragged Tuksit. "You come over again tomorrow and you'll see."

Wani and Tuksit agreed to meet on the Tuscarora side of the Licking Creek the next day to have a jumping contest between the grasshoppers. They decided that the one with the winning jumper would be the "biggest brave."

On the day of the contest, Wani went across the rippling creek in his canoe, his grasshopper tucked carefully in its little pouch. Before the contest began, the boys marked a starting line by scraping a sharp stick along the soft ground. When a grasshopper jumped, they would mark the place where it landed. Then the other would jump, and that landing spot would be marked also. The distance was to be measured with a leather thong — a strip of leather made from deer hide.

Wani's grasshopper jumped first. Oh, it was a long jump, and Wani was proud! Nothing could beat that jump, he was sure. But then Tuksit's grasshopper jumped, and the measurement showed that it had made a longer jump. Now Tuksit was the proud one!

In their excitement the boys forgot to place the grasshoppers back in their pouches. Now there were two grasshoppers jumping all over the place with two excited Indian boys trying to catch them. Wani caught one and started to place it in his pouch, but Tuksit shouted that it was the wrong one. He accused Wani of trying to steal his grasshopper because it had won the jump. Suddenly a fist-fight broke out between the boys, with much shouting and accusing. They got so loud that the women came from the village to see what was happening.

When Tuksit shouted that the other boy had tried to steal his grasshopper, the women started in on Wani, who then called across the creek to his mother for help. Soon women came over in canoes, and the battle increased. By this time, some of the young Indian braves had returned from hunting, and they joined the fracas.

By evening, the older men had joined the battle, and for days the fierce struggle continued. Hundreds of warriors, women and children fell beneath the tomahawks and arrows. No one knows what happened to Wani and Tuksit since there is no written history from the Indians. We must assume that these two friends also fell in the battle.

When white settlers came to the Licking Creek area in about 1762, friendly Indians pointed out the battleground site to them. Over time, the settlers found many relics, such as arrowheads and tomahawks, in the spot where the Grasshopper War was said to have occurred. The sachems (wise leaders) of the local Indian tribe held up this battle as a warning to any tribe about to engage in a useless war.

Teach Farm Kids About Dangers Around Them

The following entreaty, reprinted from Farm Safety 4 Just Kids, was written by Laura Klever, age 10 of Independence, Iowa, and won the 1993 Grades 4-6 Division of the Iowa FmHA Essay Contest.

Kids, share it with your parents as a way to talk about safety on your farm. What chores do you think you're old enough to do that Mom or Dad don't? Talk about it.

Laura asks her family. "Please remember to give me a hazard free '93." Her essay can help remind your family to talk about safety issues for a hazard free '94.

Please Remember

Please remember that although I love to ride in the tractor with you, my little fingers can't hang onto the fenders very well as the tractor bounces here and there, and that I could very easily fall, and be crushed under those big tires.

Please remember that I find it fascinating to watch the PTO spin around, and around as you grind feed, but that my chore clothes quickly get caught as I lean forward to watch and I'd never be strong enough to pull myself back in time.

Please remember that I love to pet all our cute and cuddly farm animals, but I forget that on hot summer days the animals don't like to be bothered. The mommy and daddy animals could get angry with me and my little legs aren't fast enough for me to get away from them.

Please remember that even though I'm tall and strong enough to mow the lawn, I'm not used to that big sharp blade, and that I don't understand that in the blink of an eye it could seriously cut my foot. I need to be reminded to wear shoes, keep my feet away from the cutting parts and never mow grass that is wet and slippery.

Please remember that even though I beg you to ride on top of the grain wagons or climb up on the grain bins, I could easily be sucked down into an open pocket, and be unable to breathe, maybe never again. Please remember to give me a "Hazard Free '94."

ANSWER — Julianne Medaglia, Birdsboro, wanted a recipe for chewy granola bars. Thanks to Dolly Longenecker, Elizabethtown, for sending a recipe that she said is very good. It does make a large batch, so you want to cut the recipe in half. For best storage, keep them refrigerated.

Granola Bars

1½ pounds marshmallows
1 pound margarine
Melt together marshmallows and margarine; add:
¼ cup oil
½ cup honey
1 pound peanut butter
Mix together and add:
9 cups crushed rice chex
6 cups oatmeal
1 cup chopped peanuts
1 cup coconut
1 cup crushed graham crackers
1 cup chocolate chips
Makes 2 9x13-inch pans, 1 jelly roll pan, and 1 8x8-inch pan.

ANSWER — Gerri Rottkamp, West Hempstead, N.Y., wanted a recipe for sweet and sour red cabbage. Thanks to Josephine H. Matenus, Dallas, for sending a recipe.

Pickled Red Cabbage

4 quarts finely shredded red cabbage
¼ cup salt
2 quarts cider vinegar
2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon celery seed
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon ground mace
½ teaspoon ground allspice
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
Sprinkle cabbage with salt. Set aside in a cool place for 30 hours. Drain all moisture from cabbage. Mix all remaining ingredients and boil for 7 minutes. Pour over the cabbage. Put into stone jars. Cover and store in a cool place.

ANSWER — Grace Ikeler, Bloomsburg, wanted a recipe for stuffed shells. Thanks to Sue Reall, Terra Alta, W.V.; Sue Peterka, Pottstown; and Ethel Heilmann, Ulysses, for sending recipes.

Stuffed Shells

Cook 6-8 large shells or manicotti noodles in boiling water just to soften a little, only takes a couple of minutes. Rinse under cold water and drain so you can handle them.
Stuffing:
½ cup ricotta cheese
½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese
¼ cup grated parmesan or romano cheese
1 egg
1 teaspoon dried parsley
Mix together all the ingredients. You may add ½ cup blanched, chopped, and drained spinach for spinach-stuffed shells. Place in baking dish.
Cover with favorite spaghetti sauce (with or without meat), sprinkle with about ¼ cup mozzarella or parmesan cheese and bake covered at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Uncover and bake about 15 minutes more or until hot and bubbly.

Mel Hauser of Kitchen Kettle Village talks about the upcoming Rhubarb Festival and its pie baking contest.

Rhubarb Festival Offers Pie Baking Contest, Rhubarb Fun

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — Every third Saturday in May, a special tribute is paid to rhubarb in the little Lancaster County village of Intercourse.

It's called the Kitchen Kettle Village Rhubarb Festival, which became an annual event when it was first held 10 years ago.

"That was in 1984, when Kitchen Kettle Village wanted to do something different for a spring celebration. Everyone did something with strawberries, but rhubarb — that was the forgotten vegetable," said Mel Hauser, publicist for the village. "Many people haven't tasted rhubarb and don't know all the delicious-tasting foods that can be made with it."

Rhubarb definitely will not take second place to any other fruit or vegetable on May 21, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

It's amazing what can be done with that long-stem reddish-green vegetable. Whether it is in food or in fun, the festival has come with a list of innovative events throughout the day-long fest.

Visitors can start with a breakfast of strawberry rhubarb French toast and berry rhubarb parfait.

Other food specialties served throughout the day include chilled strawberry rhubarb soup, spiced rhubarb ham, rhubarb pork chop casserole, rhubarb glazed ham balls, rhubarb glazed chicken kabobs, strawberry rhubarb sauce, strawberry rhubarb pie, strawberry rhubarb streusel cake, strawberry rhubarb topping for funnel cakes, strawberry rhubarb frost, strawberry rhubarb pie, rhubarb pie, strawberry rhubarb streusel cake, rhubarb pecan muffins, strawberry rhubarb filled cookies, and almond rhubarb pastry.

The rhubarb pie contest begins at 10 a.m. The festival attracts people from across the U.S. Anyone is eligible to enter the contest.

First, second, and third-place prizes will be awarded. First-place prize is $75 in cash. Second-place is a $25 Kitchen Kettle Village Gift certificate, and third place is a $10 Kitchen Kettle Village Gift certificate.

A rhubarb race car derby 500 begins at 11 a.m. The body of each dragester is constructed from a stem of rhubarb. Parts of the leaf from the stalk may be connected with toothpicks to create airfoils, fenders, canopies, and other decorative touches.

Events throughout the day include a rhubarb pie throw, free orange rhubarb punch at the hospitality gazebo, a kid's rhubarb arcade that includes rhubarb regatta, rhubarb bulls-eye toss, rhubarb pic up sticks, a rhubarb game, a rhubarb guessing event, the world's one and only rhubarb tree, a rhubarb discovery box, face painting, cookie decorating, costumed charaters Yummie the gingerbread Person and Rupert Rhubarb, and Banjo Jimmy performing.

At the festival, visitors can buy rhubarb by the pound, a collection of rhubarb recipes, and lots of rhubarb items.

Rhubarb, a perennial plant that forms a large storage root and a mass of feeder roots underground, produces buds that grow long, thick, reddish stalks with large leaves. Only the stalks are safe to eat.

Although rhubarb is technically a vegetable, people most often prepare it as a dessert. With 211 mg of calcium, rhubarb is one of the best sources of calcium in the vegetable family.

Rhubarb was first grown in Mongolia. It's name is a combination of the Greek name for the Volga River, "Rha" and the Latin "barabrium." It is assumed that rhubarb was first used by the barbarians who lived along the Volga River.

Reportedly the first rhubarb plants were shipped to America in 1770 by Benjamin Franklin to John Bartram in Philadelphia.

These facts and many more are included in the Rhubarb Recipes cookbook. The 43-page cookbook contains recipes from previous rhubarb festivals, which includes categories for beverages, breads, muffins, cakes, cookies, desserts, jams and relishes, pies, salads, soups and sauces, and entrees. It is sold for $2 at the village or by mail for $3, which covers shipping and handling. Money from the sale of cookbooks is donated to The Muscular Dystrophy Foundation.

Kitchen Kettle Village is a community of 32 country shops, where foods are prepared, original crafts created, and a quality selection of handmade country wares.

It began in the kitchen of Bob and Pat Burnley, who welcomed visitors into their kitchen to become acquainted over coffee and freshly baked cookies while watching strawberries and elderberries bubble in pots in preparation for jelly making.

Jelly continues to be made daily at the festival in addition to other cooking and craft demonstrations in the village's 32 shops.

Admission to the festival is free at Kitchen Kettle Village, located on Route 340 east of Lancaster.

For more information, call (800) 732-3538 or (717) 768-8261.

Aquaculture Studies Prepare Students For Better Understanding

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Located in the back of the Elizabethtown High School are two small buildings surrounded by a chain link fence.

One is a shed really. The other a simple frame greenhouse.

The buildings are being used as part of the school's agricultural studies. The fence is needed to prevent vandalism.

Inside the 20-foot by 20-foot shed, there are several 100-gallon fiberglass fish tanks, surrounded by a plumber's maze of white polyvinyl chloride (PVC) tubing.

The tanks are also partially hidden by living filters — aerobic bacteria-hosting mediums over which return water is trickled so that fish wastes in the water can be better broken down into harmless components.

Air pumps constantly chug. The air is humid and space somewhat restricted.

There are other tanks with water pipes and 55-gallon plastic drums filled with water. Other drums are filled with makeshift, but dependable water filters, and submersible pumps.

Sheets of bubble plastic hang down on the inside of the door.

The same is true at the 20-foot by 14-foot greenhouse — bubble plastic sheets serve as insulating curtains and protect the inside from dramatic changes in temperature and humidity.

In the greenhouse, long narrow trays hold a root and moisture medium under which flows a nutrient and acid balanced solution. The trays are really PVC rainspouting and the ends drain into large reservoir tanks.

A water-nutrient solution is cycled through a simple system and tomatoes, parsley, peppers, and cucumbers grow.

The greenhouse is the hydroponics lab. The shed is the aquaculture lab.

Both aquaculture and hydroponics (water working) systems are part of the educational options available to students at Elizabethtown High School through its Agricultural Department.

The course is called the Aquatic Resources Class. But it teaches more than how to feed fish and fertilize greenhouse plants.

It teaches that when one really understands the functions of a system, then imagination and work can make it a reality.

The classes are taught by Al Martin, an agricultural instructor at Elizabethtown High School. He created the class as an elective, non-required course.

Students who sign up get educational credit for the course.

They also get an education.

There is no doubt that Martin is responsible for the existance of the course. The district doesn't really support the program. If Martin weren't there to put in the extra time, the extra effort and use his own money, it wouldn't be done.

The odd shapes and materials used in construction of the aquatic and hyrdoponic facilities, are the result of Martin spending his time on weekends and weeknights with the course in mind. He has purchased items at K-Mart that were designed for general home storage devices, because he saw in them the potential to be adapted for use in the aquaculture facility.

Just the way he sees potential in his students.

On his own time, on his home telephone, at his own cost, he calls across the United States to check out types of fish that the students might be able to raise.

He pays for the fish the students raise, when he orders them.

The result is that, in the two learning centers, the students can apply book knowledge of pH and alkalinity, water temperature, humidity, fish and plant growth rates, feeding mechanics, and the basics of a complete animal and plant production system.

There are very few high school biology curriculums which can offer as much practical understanding of living systems to go along and reinforce conceptual understanding.

With 25 years teaching at Elizabethtown, Martin is currently an instructor of aquaculture, hydroponics, wildlife management and agriculture at the school.

He can also teach industrial arts, which was his first teaching degree achieved. After 13 years at the school, however, the industrial arts department was cut back and in order to stay employed by the district, he returned to Penn State and got another degree in agricultural education.

Martin also currently teaches with the school's Young Farmer program, a continuing education program for adult farmers.

The farmers have helped Martin with his students' courses. Through them, he was able to acquire the plastic drums — they are recycled teat dip containers that Martin cleaned — and other items, such as filters that are designed for use in a milking system.

Just to be sure that the use of alternate materials to construct the aquaculture facilities didn't bring

FFA HAPPENINGS

Operation Green Stripe

The Grassland Chapter of FFA has been named one of several chapters in Pennsylvania to participate in "Operation Green Stripe," a program to protect streams.

Participating FFA chapters can earn $600 or more for chapter activities by enrolling farmers in a program to establish grassy buffer strips between farm fields and streams. Research has shown that buffer strips can significantly reduce the amount of topsoil that washes off fields into streams.

The program is coordinated by the state FFA in cooperation with Monsanto Co. of St. Louis, which originated the program in 1992 and provides funding to local chapters. Cooperating Agway retailers across the state will provide free seed to farmers who agree to establish a buffer strip. Locally, Agway will provide seed and technical assistance to farmers recruited by the chapter.

"Erosion of farm fields and the resulting stream sedimentation is a serious problem for aquatic plants and wildlife as well as water treatment plants," said Tom Hoogheem, environmental field services director for Monsanto.

Green stripes along streams not only reduce soil erosion, they lessen the amount of farm chemicals that wash into streams in trace amounts during heavy rainfall, Hoogheem said.

In selecting FFA chapters for the program, emphasis was given to chapters in areas where erosion and stream sedimentation are serious problems, but a chapter's enthusiasm and creative ideas for implementing the environmental education program were also considered.

Clifford Day, local FFA adviser, said he hopes many local farmers will agree to establish buffer strips on their farms.

"Growers who participate will

Aquaculture Studies Prepare Students For Better Understanding

along with it any hidden toxins, Martin also used his own money to have fish tested, before any were eaten.

Through his efforts and with the help of outside agencies, the students also have a pond on school property where they raise bass and trout. They have field plots for crop production, and they also have demonstration areas for wildlife production.

The hydroponics and aquaculture projects at the school are the result of Martin's own interest, that of former and current students, and because of real and perceived local and global employment opportunities in those fields.

Martin said he is proud of the fact that students built the facilties. In effect, the students built the classrooms and the teaching materials from which they learn.

Rather than using strict lecturing to drill concepts into the students' heads so they can pass written tests, Martin's teaching style is to provide instruction, and to let the information sink in as the proof of the lessons taught becomes apparent through observation and work.

The potential for a student to surpass a teacher in knowledge about a subject is much less, if the knowledge passed onto the student comes from a teacher who depends solely on on classroom lectures and tests.

The potential for a student to gain a solid grasp of a concept, and eventually discover new things, is much greater when a teacher's theory is tested through application.

"All the activities, including water quality work, calculations of feed rates, and application of scientific principles give these vo-ag students new skills and the confidence to try new things, which hopefully will carry over into their lives after graduation," Martin said.

Not only do the students get to raise fish from fry and plants from seed, but they also do maintenance work and record keeping.

There is also another reward for those involved in Martin's class — the harvest. Recently, the group held a crayfish meal, after raising them to maturity in a makeshift system.

"The culmination of this project was the cooking and eating of their work," Martin wrote in an explanation of the student's work. "Eating the project provides a good incentive for further study of these interesting creatures (crayfish)."

(Turn to Page B21)

Determining the pH of a liquid used to grow plants using hydroponics at Elizabethtown High School is part of the daily chores students perform.

These two semi-clear hard plastic round containers were designed and once intended for use as housing for backup telephone utility batteries. Martin heard about them through his discussions with others in aquaculture, drove his own vehicle to pick them up, cleaned and sterilized them, and now they are being used to raised crayfish in the Elizabethtown aquaculture facility. The pyramid of sectioned PVC tubing immersed in each container serves to house the crayfish and reduce aggressive behavior between the crustaceans. It was a student's idea to use the PVC tubing to control behavior.

Aquaculture Studies Prepare Students For Better Understanding

The operations at the high school are crude, by technological standards, but they work to show that there is unseen potential in objects.

All of these projects speak to what Martin is trying to convey to his charges — that they can do work that brings more than one reward, that they can enjoy the work, and that they can do things with what they have in their minds, not just with what is given to them by others.

Martin is also trying to teach the students how to think things through full circle.

While certain studies help the development of three-dimensional understanding, such as industrial arts, Martin tries to expand that type of understanding to systems.

A real world example of the diffence in approach would be with a given a task to develop a residential development for people.

Current practice is to meet legal requirements and move on.

Given the same task using a sytematic approach, human needs would be addressed to ensure a healthy environment for the proper growth and development of residents.

The difference is that under the current approach, no real consideration is given that children in a residential development have a safe place to play, to excercise, to interact, or explore, because it isn't required, and because it doesn't easily increase net margin.

The only way these considerations are addressed is once the development is occupied, and then only if special efforts are made by community leaders.

Even for those relatively few considerations which are required, the threat of cashing in a developer's bond is necessary to ensure that minimum standards have been met.

Using a systematic approach to residential development, water and sewage, recreation, food availability, emergency planning, storm water runnoff, utility supplies, even environmental health considerations, such as contaminated streams, broken glass, etc., would be considered and addressed.

The difference is that, by using a working system approach, large subdivisions wouldn't be constructed on limestone watersheds without adequate measures being taken to eliminate or minimize the creation of sinkholes.

The difference is that home designs and placement wouldn't be generically applied to highlands and floodplains, regardless of the wind, the weather, and the facing of the sun.

For Martin's agricultural students, most of whom are not being raised on farms, there is a better chance that they may understand the need to develop a complete production system for almost any plant or animal.

With the use of tools — knowledge, clamps, measuring devices, etc. — these youth are getting an opportunity to understand something of the extent of their own potential to create.

"I love the class," said Chris Willenbecher, 17, son of Mark and Wendy Willenbecher. "Mr. Martin is a great teacher, he cares about the students and he knows his subjects, and if a student needs something, he'll go out and buy it."

Martin said he does spend out of his own pocket to keep the facilities going. In fact, he buys the fish, the crayfish and all the other stock. He said he has about $5,000 of his own money invested in the two facilities.

But he said he enjoys the classes because his is learning too, he said.

For example, the school is the only one in the state with a permit to raise a strain of rainbow trout called the Donaldson Steelhead-Salmon.

Martin paid for the fish — 75 cents per fingerling. He also applied for the permits to raise them in Pennsylvania, just as he had to do to get permission to make the small pond on the school property, just as he had to do in order to get approval to raise Tilapia at the school.

He said having the Donaldson steelhead in the aquaculture facility is exciting for him as well. They are supposed to be more tolerant of higher water temperatures than normal rainbow trout, and reportedly have a fast rate of gain.

This strain of fish may well be a commercial fish of importance in the future of his students and they will have a leg up on anyone else.

Martin said he wants to see youth interested in agriculture, but more so than merely trying to fill the requirements of an existing job description.

He is trying to support and encourage youth who will be able to make jobs for themselves and others.

be demonstrating that they care about water qualify, wildlife, education, and the environment," Day said.

In addition to receiving $75 for each green stripe (up to eight), the chapter will be able to compete for "Best Chapter Award" statewide and nationally.

The award will be granted to the chapter that did the best job of enrolling growers and working with them to establish buffer strips that protect streams and provide habitat for wildlife.

"We expect to see some really exciting innovations from this program, which has students and farmers working together," Hoogheem said. "This is an opportunity to tell the non-farming community that farmers, on their own and without regulation, are conducting their operations in an environmentally responsible way. And, maybe best of all, it's a way for future farmers to learn ecologically sound practices."

National Youth Service Day

"National Youth Service Day is a signature event to celebrate and honor a national treasure — young people involved in programs and projects serving their communities," said Steve Mullen, ES/USDA 4-H Youth Service.

"Goals of National Youth Service Day are to recognize the service efforts of more than one million young people nationwide, to teach communities to view young people as resources rather than problems, and to create avenues for collaboration among youth service programs, community agencies, schools, universities and local, regional, and state governments," Mullen said. "National Youth Service Day communicates to policy makers, business and community leaders, educators, parents, and youth the idealism and vast potential of organized youth service."

Since its inception in 1988, National Youth Service Day has provided much needed recognition and visibility for the efforts of local programs and the contribution of young people who serve during the year.

Celebrate National Youth Service Day this year on April 19. For further information, contact Laurie Szoke, Chester County 4-H Coordinator, at (610) 696-3500.

Introducing the CHORE-TIME DURAKO dropping board cage system, 6 rows 4 tiers 464 ft. long with Chore-Time ULTRAFLO® feeding system and Chore-Time's scraper system. (99,792 layer capacity)

1. [redacted] manure pass through to get cleaner eggs. This is a new dropping board system available with Chore-Time's plastic rails and plywood dropping boards or all plastic dropping boards.
2. [redacted]. The 16 inch high cage top allows nipples to be placed high to stop accidental triggering and birds waste less water because they reach straight up to drink. There is enough space between tiers to put nipples on stands which allows birds to reach nipples from anywhere in the cage. And the cages are spread out so nipples are in the light plus back away from the feed trough.
3. [redacted] space for your layers for better production. This cage is 16 inches tall in the front and 12 inches tall in the rear with nothing cut off for a curtain. The front tips out for additional bird comfort.

50 Teams Compete In Envirothon

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Fifty teams from throughout Chester County will be participating in the 1994 Chester County Envirothon.

Each May, students from public, private, and parochial schools highlight months of preparation with a competition held at Springton Manor Farm, the county demonstration farm in Wallace Township.

The Chester County Envirothon is part of the Pennsylvania Envirothon program, which helps students understand the total environment and their role in it. Students who participate in the Envirothon will demonstrate an understanding of environmental concepts, how human activity impacts the environment, and how humans can work together to protect the environment. The Chester County Envirothon was developed in 1993 out of the former Chester County ECO-MEET.

In Chester County, the program is sponsored by the Board of County Commissioners through the Parks and Recreation Department and the Chester County Conservation District as well as PECO Energy. The competition will take place May 2, 3 and 5 at Springton Manor Farm in Wallace Township.

Preliminary registration indicates the 1994 Chester County competition will include 50 teams representing 36 schools from throughout the county. Those 36 schools include 11 public school districts and three private/parochial schools, totaling more than 325 students and teachers.

The four-levels of competition include Elementary Level I (grades 1-2). Elementary Level II (grades 3-5), Junior Varsity Level (grades 6-8) and Senior Level (grades 9-12). The winner of the senior level competition is eligible to participate in the state Envirothon in June, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts. The 1993 Chester County winner, Great Valley High School, went on to win sixth place in the state Envirothon which included participants from 50 Pennsylvania counties.

The Envirothon is free to all participating schools, but is not open to spectators. All participants receive a T-shirt, a tree for planting, and additional awards. Winning teams receive trophies and educational prizes.

STAYING COMPETITIVE

How will you stay in business for the next year or the next decade? What follows are few facts and opinions.

Small Operations (<100 Sows)

Because no two operations are alike, every producer has a different perspective.

Take the small operation. Often, labor is provided by the family with no out-of-pocket cost. Facilities are usually remodeled from existing buildings, which helps to reduce overhead.

Environmental problems are uncommon since operations of this size don't generate much odor. Diversification is the rule, with several farm enterprises contributing income.

Finally, because of the low initial cost, most owners need not make a long-term commitment.

Those factors are all advantages. But because the operation is small, total income is also limited, often to the point that it cannot support a family. Pig flow is continuous, which presents more disease problems than all-in/all-out. And with the small numbers to sell, there is little market leverage.

Can such an operation compete in today's industry? Absolutely, if the producer has a market. That's an important "if," and one that seems to be quickly changing, especially for feeder pigs.

Moderate-Sized Operations (100-500 Sows)

As the operation grows in size, some nice things happen. Production often follows a weekly schedule, making farrowing groups and all-in/all-out practical at least through the nursery stage.

More market options are available simply because there are more pigs. And often the operation will support several families.

But now the labor extends beyond the owner or immediate family. Without question, finding and keeping qualified people to work on hog farms is a big issue.

The operation is big enough to generate nuisance and environmental problems, even if manure is handled in a sound manner. Buildings are all of the sudden expensive — much more so than remodeled facilities, and on a per-sow basis, even more expensive than very large operations.

Many farmers in this category often have a major crop operation, adding to an already heavy responsibility with the hogs. And of course, the big facility investment translates to a long-term commitment to the hog business.

Large Operations (> 500 Sows)

As hog facilities get bigger, the cost per sow comes down. Labor is more efficient. Now, instead of one person caring for 100 sows, that person can handle 200 or more.

Pigs leave the barn by the truckload, allowing for all of the market flexibility permitted in a several hundred-mile radius. All-in/all-out is standard from farrowing through finishing. And the people on the farm devote all of their time and energy to raising pigs — specialization that pays dividends.

Disadvantages include the fact that labor is almost all hired. Somehow, someway, the owner must challenge that hired labor to be as conscientious as he would. Also, large operations frequently generate odor complaints.

With these sizes of enterprises in perspective, staying competitive and staying in business, it seems to me, comes down to three factors: image, marketing, and the day-to-day routines.

Image

Manure is the major image issue. Nutrient management is now for real. We're all beginning to appreciate it. But we're also realizing it's easier on paper than it is in practice.

Odor generates lots of problems with few solutions. We need objective ways to measure odor, and we desperately need methods of control.

Until we've learned how to control odor, remember that perceived odor problems are always worse when farm appearance and operator cooperation falls short.

A final comment that may sound a bit sobering is that Pennsylvania is not a particularly good place to raise hogs. In addition to paying a lot for corn, and not having the marketing advantage we had 20 years ago, we also have a lot of people encroaching on our farms in the southeast part of the state.

Marketing

First, are you providing the market with what it wants — the right weight range and desirable amounts of fat and muscling? If not, remember that the market not only determines how much you make on each hog. The market also determines if you make anything on each hog.

Once we get past the fat and muscle measurements, there is more to worry about.

Pale, soft, and exudative (PSE) pork is a bubbling issue ready to boil. Most packers will tell you that PSE is already a big-time problem. Now, we're poised to use (manage?) the stress gene to improve carcass measurements, perhaps at the expense of carcass quality since the stress gene is clearly related to PSE.

Drug residues should not be a problem but they are — at least enough that consumers think they are. Well, the National Pork Producers Council has a Pork Quality Assurance program, in which producers have no excuses for not participating. Producers must understand their herd health program, the use of drugs, and have a good relationship with their veterinarian or a professional familiar with the operation.

With that accomplished, the producer can qualify for the highest level of certification (Level III). In Pennsylvania, out of several thousand producers, we have only about 100 on Level III.

The viability of your market is perhaps something to lose sleep over. Where would you be, for example, if you lost the local buying station, the local sale barn, or your major buyer? If you happen to be in an area where there are several marketing alternatives, consider yourself lucky.

Day-To-Day — The Big Items

- Sow productivity. Unlike feed costs or market hog prices, sow productivity is the one thing over which you have some control that also exerts a huge impact on profit. In a 250-sow operation, increasing production by 1 pig per sow per year will add at least $10,000 in profit.
- All-in/all-out. It's important for pigs from birth to market weight. Less disease, less feed, and less time to market.
- Artificial insemination. A piece of technology that's been around for at least 20 years and is finally getting a grip on our industry. It provides an opportunity to use quality, proven breeding stock, and can do wonders for uniformity.
- Multiple site production. This is all-in/all-out and then some. Farrowing at one location. Weaning (at an early age before diseases are transmitted from sow to pig) into a nursery at another location. And finishing at yet a third location. The improvement in performance, especially in a herd with respiratory problems, is impressive.
- Keeping the place full. Using our 250-sow farrow-to-finish herd as an example, farrowing nine litters per week, instead of 10 litters per week, will reduce profit at least $6,000/year. So operating even at 90 percent of capacity is bad news.

Day-To-Day — The Small Items

- Don't waste time. Have a system and keep things on a schedule. Try to finish on job before you start another. Don't create work for yourself in the most common tasks that often waste time — moving hogs, pressure washing, farming several farms, and hauling manure.
- Feed waste. We all know it's expensive. It has much to do with feeder adjustment and a lot to do with feeder design.
- Mange/parasites. Not much excuse any more for putting up with either of these problems. Even Ivomec is now available in feed-grade form for growing pigs.
- Keeping pigs comfortable. Cold pigs are expensive pigs.
- Don't wean too early. Many times the solution to post-weaning

Pa.-Bred Bull Enters Proving Program

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — 7H4749 Plushanski Thor ERIC-ET, a young sire bred by Charles Plushanski of Kutztown, Pa., has been chosen to tenter Select Sires' Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) sire sampling system.

Based on his outstanding pedigree, 7H4749 has been selected as one of 200 Holstein bulls from throughout the United States to enter the program in 1994. In addition to being sampled through PGA Cooperator herds, this young sire has been selected as a super sampler. With this designation, he is available to all interested Holstein breeders.

7H4749 ERIC is a Thor son that should sire tall, correct daughters with great mammary systems. His dam is a Very Good (87) Bell Rex daughter with an "Excellent" mammary system. She has outstanding PTA's of +2,334M, +103F and +87P and produced 32,099M, 1,422F and 1,093P as a Junior two-year-old. The next dam is Plushanski Neil Flute, who is scored Very Good (87-GMD-DOM) and is well known as a transmitter of high solids milk. She has a top record of 35,145M, 1,828F and 1,193P as a five-year-old and has produced 102,372M lifetime.

Beef Briefs

John Comerford

Penn State Beef Specialist

PRELIMINARY RESULTS OF BALE STORAGE TRIAL

A trial was conducted at Penn State last year which compared three storage methods of large round bales of grass.

The grass was either stored inside as dry hay or harvested as balage at about 40 percent dry matter and stored either by wrapping in plastic with a Kverneland (Nearbo, Norway) wrapper or stored in a plastic tube (Pronovost Equipment, St. Tile, Quebec).

The balage was stored on a concrete pad outdoors. After about 170 days of storage, the hay and balage was fed to mature beef cows in dry lot using either a conventional ring-type bale feeder or a feeder with an inverted cone and a solid base. All the material was sampled at harvest and after storage and the feeding waste was measured.

As would be expected when comparing a fermented feed with a dry one, the protein values tended to be higher for the balage after storage, while there was some reduction in TDN values. A significant difference was found for changes in TDN between the dry hay and that stored in the tube. Changes in TDN value were -8.3 percent, -10.4 percent, and -9.2 percent for dry hay, tube storage, and wrapped bales, respectively.

The cattle readily consumed all of the forage. Small spots of mold were occasionally seen on both the wrapped and tubed balage; however, they were usually on the surface and no more than 3-4 inches in diameter.

A greater concern was feeding losses. There was no difference in the amount of dry matter that was wasted between the different types of bales. There was, however, a highly significant difference in the amount of wastage between the two types of feeders that were used.

Use of the ring-type feeder resulted in four times as much wastage as with the cone-type feeder. Upon observation, this was probably due to the solid base in the cone feeder capturing forage as it was pulled out of the bale by the cow.

Wastage was 8.0 percent of the dry matter offered by the ring feeder, and it was 1.9 percent for the cone feeder. After conversion to an as fed basis, this means there was 149 more pounds of dry hay wasted for each ton of hay offered and 305 more pounds of balage wasted for each ton offered in the ring feeder. For an average cow fed hay valued at $70 per ton for 5 months, this is an average loss of $10.33 per cow.

With a difference in price between the two types of feeders of about $550, a 53-cow herd would pay for the cone type feeder in one year.

There are some other considerations for processing and storing hay by these methods:

- The cost of wrapping is about $4 per bale and must be compared with other forms of storage, including bags, before making a decision about which kind of storage to use.
- It should be apparent that labor costs are significantly higher for wrapping or putting bales in a tube.
- Putting bales in a tube implies that all bales must be moved to the permanent storage site at the time of baling, thus further increasing labor costs.
- There is usually going to be a cost associated with disposal of the plastic after feeding.
- There is significant evidence to show that total recovery of feed value from standing forage can be enhanced by wrapping or tubing bales. The long-term cost of that recovery must be weighed against the benefits.

Time To —

- Be sure all the new calves have been identified, and those that are destined to be steers are castrated with a knife.
- Gear up the nutrition of 2- and 3-year-old cows with calves. Unless they are particularly heavy milking cows, their needs can best be met with 1-2 pounds of corn per head daily to insure they will handle the calf, continue to grow, and get rebred on time for a calf again next year.
- Get dewormer lined up for cows at turnout. A strategic deworming program includes treatment 2-3 weeks after turnout and again after the last frost. If cows were not dewormed last fall, they should be dewormed now and again 2-3 weeks after turnout. Use a drug that kills both the mature and immature forms of the worm (class II dewormers.) They are available in injectable, paste, and pour-on forms.
- Get your bull power in shape. If you need to buy a bull, remember to buy one with good records that has EPDs that are high for the traits that make you the most money. If the breeder prices him higher than you are used to paying because these records are available, pay him. You will make more money from the deal than he will.

Pork Prose

check, low starter feed intake, or poor nursery facilities is to simply wean one week later.

- Records. Tells you where you are. Helps you troubleshoot problems.

Summary

1. Image is now the issue. It's important for you and it's vital for our industry.

2. Your market is the difference between success and disaster. If your marketing options are limited, you have little choice but to supply the buyer with what he wants. That applies to .80 inch of backfat as much as it does to reaching Level III on the Pork Quality Assurance Program.

3. The production crank. Do your sows produce? If you can improve productivity even a small amount, the increases in profit will astound you. Is your building full? If it's not, the part of your building operating at less than capacity makes for an expensive parking lot.

Farm Program Sign-Up In Progress

LIONVILLE (Chester Co.) — The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) is accepting for the 1994 Feed Grain and Wheat programs. This sign-up period continues through April 29.

"All farmers with an established crop acreage base are eligible to participate in the voluntary programs," ASCS official Hollis D. Baker said. Program benefits include price support loans and deficiency payments.

At sign-up, farmers may request 50 percent of their estimated deficiency payments for wheat and feed grains. Baker said the payments will be limited to the farmer's intended program acreage.

There are no acreage reduction requirements for wheat, corn, grain sorghum, oats or barley.

Established target prices are $4 per bushel for wheat, $2.75 per bushel for corn, $2.61 per bushel for sorghum, $2.36 per bushel for barley and $1.45 per bushel for oats.

"Farmers will have wide latitude in current programs, including permission to plant soybeans or other oilseeds on optional flexible acreage," the ASCS official said.

Additional 1994 farm program provisions may be obtained from the Chester/Delaware County ASCS Office.

Poultry Science

Water is of unequaled importance as a primary element in the metabolism of all animals. Water acts as a transport medium for all nutrients, helps in controlling digestive heat production, and aids in heat loss by evaporation. Water consumption is greatly influenced by age and size of bird, environmental temperature, type and amount of feed consumed, as well as several other factors.

The normal avian adult will consume 5.5 percent of its body weight in 24 hours while a growing bird will consume 18 to 20 percent of its body weight daily.

Drinking water for poultry can be obtained from wells, the city supply (human potable water), streams, rivers, lakes, ponds, rainfall catchments, and springs.

Water quality is characterized by its taste, acidity, alkalinity, odor, color, turbidity, salinity, electrical conductivity, pH, biochemical oxygen demand, hardness, presence of nitrites, nitrates, silicates, phosphates, carbonates, bicarbonates, cations, and microbial and industrial contaminants and toxicants.

Standards for human health frequently are applied to poultry because data are limited on the effects on poultry of various inorganic materials in the drinking water. We are more interested today in standards of toxicity that may decrease poultry production rather than from a mortality standpoint.

Some research from Tastybird Foods, Russellville, Ark. (now part of Tyson Foods), reported results of a long-term study that positively correlated certain water characteristics with broiler cost of production. Specifically, they correlated bacterial contamination, low pH, and high nitrate levels with poor performance on particular farms.

Dr. Dennis Murphy, a former researcher at the University of Maryland, has reported that 466 ppm in nitrate contamination of wells caused significant growth retardation in broilers. He also found changes in water consumption and hematocrit levels occurred when nitrate levels were between 29 and 117 ppm levels.

Shallow wells were found to be characteristically acidic and more apt to have nitrate contamination. He contended that the testing of wells for pH, nitrate, and bacterial contamination would be useful in improving water quality and performance.

Salinity

Water high in saline is less palatable than water with lower levels of these salts. Saline salts are composed of sodium, calcium, magnesium, and potassium. These salts are found in bicarbonate, chloride, or sulfate forms.

Salinity problems can vary with the season of the year. Elevated ammonium chloride and sodium bicarbonate levels are desirable and can be used to help offset the effects of high summertime ambient temperatures and maintain egg production in broiler and turkey breeders and egg layers.

At other times of the year, these salt levels are not seen as desirable. Since water consumption is increased during summer, a salt level that is non-toxic during other times of the year can easily become toxic because of the total quantity consumed.

Salt in excess produces loose droppings, whether the source is from feed or from water. The minimum daily dietary requirement of sodium is 0.115 percent for all ages of chickens (normal table salt contains 37 percent sodium).

Many feed ingredients contain some salt so that the amount added as strictly salt in a poultry ration is seldom more than 0.25 percent. If water contains 1,000 ppm salt, it is equivalent to 0.20 to 0.25 percent salt in the ration.

As the percentage of salt in the diet increases over the optimum, chickens will increase water consumption in order to dilute and excrete the excess salt. However, if the water supply is high in salt, an increase in water intake only aggravates the problem.

Poultry droppings become almost watery when the salt content in the water is more than 4,000 ppm. Chickens can tolerate about 1 percent salt in water and about 3.5 percent in feed, but when the weather is hot, birds will drink up to three times as much water, therefore 1 percent salt becomes excessive.

Young birds are more susceptible than older birds. One case study found that turkey poults suffered up to 50 percent mortality when the water contains 5,000 ppm salt (0.5 percent) and the diet also contained 0.5 percent salt.

Nitrates and Nitrites

Nitrates and nitrites are found in most waters. When found, they usually indicate contamination from animal and poultry wastes or certain fertilizers.

In some instances, nitrates can originate from some geological sources. The symptoms of nitrate-nitrite toxicity vary with age and kind of bird, level of nitrate or nitrite consumed, and ration composition.

Growing birds generally show unthriftiness, loss of appetite, depressed growth, incoordination, muscle tremors, labored breathing, and high mortality. Poultry seem to be more tolerant of high nitrate-nitrite levels than humans, with tolerance levels of 300 ppm for nitrates and 50 ppm for nitrites (45 ppm nitrate causes blue babies' syndrome, nitrate cyanosis, in infants).

One effect of high nitrate-nitrite level is decreased levels of Vitamin A and Beta-carotene in the livers that can affect health and growth.

Acidity

The taste preference of birds is different from that of humans. In a trial, chickens did not decrease their water intake so long as pH was between 2 and 10, but the water was rejected at pH 1 and pH 13. However, a pH of 6.3 or less may interfere with antibiotic uptake and therefore may be detrimental to performance.

Chlorinating water is commonly used for sanitation. The components that form the chlorine gas are more reactive in waters of low pH (acidic) than those of high pH (basic).

Iron

Many water supplies have a reddish-brown color due to the presence of iron which, when exposed to air, oxidizes and forms iron oxide.

It stains almost everything and may produce a slimy covering, clogging water valves and fountains.

Iron oxide is harmless to poultry, but the slime produced may harbor pathogenic microorganisms. Efforts to soften water or filter water can help eliminate the slime and iron, but care must be taken to prevent adding detrimental levels of salts by softening, or creating a site for bacterial concentration and growth by not changing filters on a regular basis.

Sulfur

When hydrogen sulfide gas is dissolved in water, the resulting product is often termed a "rotten egg" odor or taste to water. The common origin is the result of anaerobic bacterial action in the water table, producing hydrogen sulfide from organic matter containing sulfur.

Hydrogen sulfide itself has no detrimental effect on poultry. However, the fact that in most instances bacterial action is necessary for formation of this sulfur product means that an undesirable environment exists in your water system.

Chlorinating has been found to obliterate the sulfur taste and odor if added in the correct amount.

Microbial Contamination

We consider water "contaminated" if it contains any E. coli, Pseudomonas sp. or Staphylococcus sp. Pathogenic bacteria as well as viruses can gain entrance to the water supply as the water travels across or down through soil and rock.

Sudden periods of heavy rains or flooding may cause ordinarily weather-exposed waste material to be washed down into the water table. Many times disease-producing microorganisms, particularly coliform organisms, are an indication of fecal contamination.

Although all coliform organisms are not pathogenic, many possess this potential and their presence indicates that infectious bacteria and viruses might be present.

Poultry diseases possibly transmitted by the water supply include salmonellosis, coryza, infectious bronchitis, Newcastle disease, blackhead and erysipelas, to name a few. If the water is suspect, bacterial counts of fecal coliform and fecal streptococcal bacteria should be taken.

Bacteria and viruses may be destroyed by adding disinfectants and sanitizers to the water (chlorine). Sanitizers used routinely can also help control algae. The presence of these organisms can be greatly diminished if the water lines and fountains are flushed, drained, and disinfected with a water line cleanser between flocks.

Conclusion

The following levels are listed as guides for evaluating water quality.

Factor	Detrimental	Questionable	No Effect
Bacteria (coliform/liter)	>20	1-20	< 1
Sodium (ppm)	>100	<5, >10	6.0-8.5
Nitrates (ppm)	>300	50 - 300	< 25
Nitrites (ppm)	> 50	10 - 50	< 10
Iron (ppm)	> 6	3-6	< 2
Sulfates (ppm)	>1000	250 - 1000	< 250

<= less than; > = greater than.

In conclusion, water quality is important for poultry, however, much is not known about how different salts, high levels of nitrates, and nitrites, and high or low pH levels are detrimental and should be avoided.

Other water quality factors such as turbidity, hardness, electrical conductivity, oxygen demand, silicates, phosphates, and carbonates have not been correlated with poultry performance.

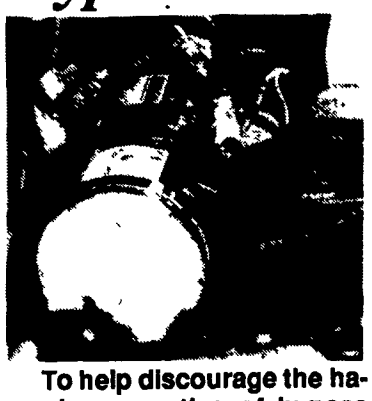
Case Offers Deterrent To Bypass Starting

RACINE, Wis. — In an effort to further discourage the hazardous practice of bypass starting, J I Case is offering to install protective starter/solenoid/relay cover kits on many of its tractors free of charge through its dealer network.

"Bypassing starting is a dangerous practice under any conditions," said Bob Snopko, Case manager, product support. " An operator may think he can save time by starting a machine from the ground. But if the machine is in gear and the operator tries to start it from the ground, it may move unexpectedly, seriously injuring the operator."



To help discourage the hazardous practice of bypass starting, J I Case is offering to install protective starter/ solenoid/relay cover kits free of charge through its dealer network.

The Case kit helps discourage operators from bypass starting machines. "When the protective device is installed, the operator will find it more difficult to bypass start the machine," Snopko said. "Removal of the cover requires tools and a considerable amount of time. Because it takes less time to start the machine the correct way — from the operator's seat — the kit serves to further discourage the unsafe practice of bypass starting."

Zeneca Receives EPA Registration For Surpass

WILMINGTON, Del. — Zeneca Ag Products received EPA registration for Surpass EC, a new corn herbicide that controls annual grasses and small-seeded broadleaf weeds.

Zeneca should be able to supply local agricultural dealers with the product within one to two weeks, according to Steve Miller, product manager.

Surpass is applied preemergence up to 30 days before planting, or shallow-incorporated. It can be used in tillage systems ranging from conventional to no-till, and has been widely tested in university studies and on-farm trials across the Corn Belt.

Surpass is chemically related to Dual and Micro-Tech. "The difference is that acetochlor, the active ingredient in Surpass, is more active and more consistent," Miller said. "Through wet and dry years, growers can expect higher levels of control on foxtail, fall panicum, barnyardgrass, crabgrass, and other annual grasses.

Miller notes that Surpass is labeled for partial control of several tough grasses such as woolly cupgrass, seedling johnsongrass, shattercane, wild proso millet, and field sandbur.

Zeneca Ag Products recently received EPA registration for Surpass EC, a new, highly-active corn herbicide. Surpass controls annual grasses and small-seeded broadleaf weeds.

While primarily a grass herbicide, Surpass also offers a higher level of broadleaf control than competing products. It's labeled for control of lambsquarters, pigweed, common ragweed, nightshade, kochia, and more.

Surpass will allow growers who rely on atrazine to reduce atrazine rates by about 30 percent, he said. The product can also help control triazine-resistant pigweed or lambsquarter.

K-Series Improvements Highlight Baler Features

PELLA, Iowa — A new, highly versatile round baler that harvests both dry and high-moisture hay highlights the 1994 introduction of Vermeer's expanded K-Series Baler line.

The Vermeer 604K features a new, clean, streamlined design (introduced by the 605K Baler in 1993). It also incorporates several key engineering improvements (on both K-Series models) which significantly enhance baling performance in a variety of haying conditions.

The new baler can customize both the size and weight of the bale to fit specific needs or size requirements. For example, you can vary bale diameter (from 36 to 72 inches) by simply loosening one wing nut and dialing in the desired bale size with the unit's Equal-Fill/AutoTie Monitor. You can also pre-select bale weight by varying pneumatic/hydraulic belt tension through an easy adjustment of the hydraulic density pressure setting and/or changing the pneumatic pressure setting. Maximum bale size is 6 feet x 4 feet.

The 604K harvests a bale of dry material weighing up to 1,900 pounds, depending on moisture content. The maximum four-foot bale width also allows you to load a 45-foot trailer that could easily carry a payload weighing up to 45,000 pounds. In addition, the 604K can be equipped with an optional silage baling kit, giving operators the choice of rolling either dry bales or high-moisture silage packages with the same unit. (Full-sized silage bales weigh significantly more.)

Easy-Operation Features In Ford Loader

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new Ford Model 7310 low-profile loader from Ford New Holland fits the entire range of 30 Series 3-cylinder Ford tractors as well as the 62-HP 4-cylinder "5030."

Designed for Quick Attach to the tractor, the loader is also available with a quick bucket attach system to simplify and speed hookup and change over from material buckets to manure forks.

Breakout force with a standard materials bucket is 4905 pound, said Ford New Holland product manager Dave Dell. Bucket lift capacity is 2,500 pounds with 10-foot dump height.

Bucket roll-back angle enables the new "7310" to handle slurry-type material. The 40-degree dump angle helps assure cleaner dumps in sticky material. Optional hydraulic self-leveling controls spills.

The new Ford Model 7310 low-profile, Quick attach loader from Ford New Holland features single-lever joystick control. It fits the 62 HP 4-cylinder "5030" Ford tractor as well as the entire range of 30 Series 3-cylinder Ford models.

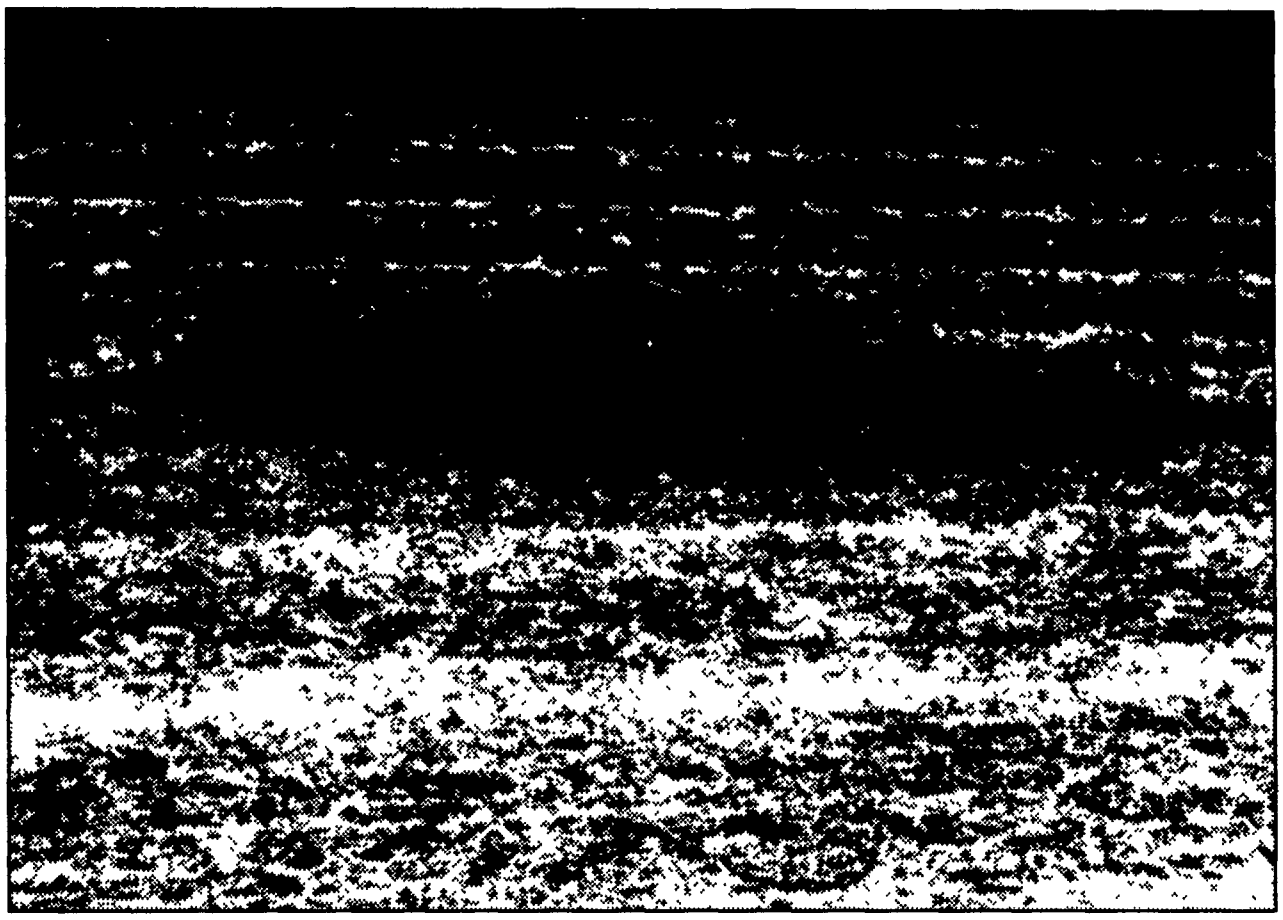
MAGIC WAND



A new addition to the Case IH implement line, the model 4200 Combo Mulch Finisher combines a number of operations into one. It's a lot like having a magic wand when it comes to seedbed preparation in high residue fields.

In a single pass, you mix soil, firming and pulverizing it. Air pockets close. Weeds are killed. And residue remains top side to help reduce wind and water erosion...saving precious soil.

Unless you actually have a magic wand, the Case Inernational 4200 Combo Mulch Finisher is the next best bet in conservation tillage.

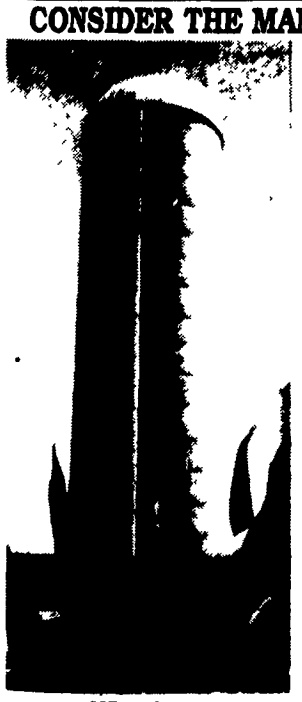
CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF CONCRETE



This has been quite the winter, hasn't it? I think most of us are really looking forward to spring. In the meantime, we have to get through this ice, snow, and soon MUD! There's a lot of ground not frozen because of the snow cover, and if you must go over that ground to get to your stored feed, that will cause quite a struggle.

And, if the long range forecasters are right, another 6 years of severe winter weather means you will want to be better prepared to store and handle your valuable feeds.

"On most dairy farms, QUALITY FORAGE is the single most important factor affecting profit."

Our business has to do with "Protecting Your Forage Quality." Nobody protects forage quality like we do... Nobody!

- Ostrich produce more marketable red meat per bird, per acre, than any other commercially produced livestock.
- Ostrich require less land per animal than any other commercially produced red meat.
- Ostrich meat is already accepted in restaurants and is a requested meat in America today.

MIRACLE FEEDS . . . HER SOURCE FOR BREWERS WET GRAINS

Have You Considered Making BWG a Part of Your Herd's Program?

Brewers wet grains are an alternate part of many dairy rations in this area because they:

- Are very economical.
- Are concentrated and provide protein, energy and digestible fiber in a very efficient manner.
- Provide a significant quantity of bypass protein.
- Are an effective way to extend your forage when it is in short supply.
- Enhance the nutritional content of poor quality forage.
- Are flexible . . .can be used with McNess vitamin and mineral premixes in either grain mixes or TMR's (total mixed rations).

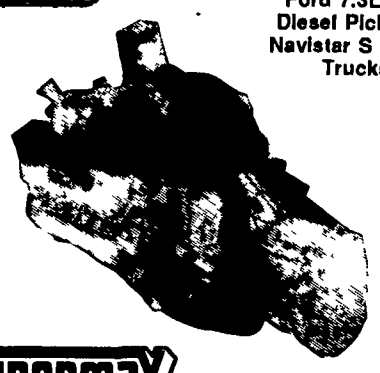
TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM
"Pulse"
Ford 7.3L/6.9L Diesel Pickup & Navistar S Series Trucks



Hypermax ENGINEERING, INC.
The HYPERMAX PULSE TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM utilizes the high pressure exhaust pulses to achieve faster "off idle" engine acceleration and vastly improves throttle response. This response feature is accomplished without the use of a wastegate, which detracts from performance anywhere but at low engine speeds, due to its inherent high exhaust back pressure.

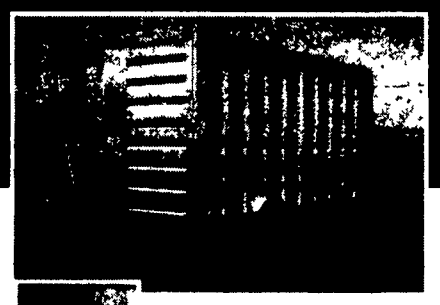
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

ROSE DALE FARM is a picturesque working beef cattle operation and has been family operated for over two generations. Located in the heart of the Shenandoah Valley near one of the most prospering areas of Stuarts Draft. The stately Circa 1852 brick home features many improvements, but original features such as 7 fireplaces, hand hewn floor joists & rafters and handmade peg doors still remain. The original bank barn has been expanded to add a covered feed lot with a Jamesway Feeder and electric waterers. Two silos, two large machine sheds & numerous other well maintained outbuildings add to the convenience of this operation. This 181 acre farm contains approximately 50 acres of tillable river bottom land, 22 acres of hardwoods and the remainder in hayfields and pasture. Surrounded by the Blue Ridge mountains with the South River flowing through the property, this quality location is at a sacrifice price of $475,000.

The Stonerook Family

RHA 11/04/93
14,661 lbs. milk - 762 fat 5.3%
551 Protein 3.8%

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — Located in a rich fertile farming area in Blair County is a place called the "Cove". Top quality dairy cattle and top quality crop production are synonymous with this area. It is in this environment that Stoney Hollow Jerseys have developed into one of the top Jersey herds in the state, boasting a RHA of 14,661 lb. milk, 762 lbs. fat, and 551 lbs. protein.

Stoney Hollow is a fourth generation farm owned and operated by Donald & Jill Stonerook. They took over the responsibilities and day to day operation of the farm from Don's parents, Earl & Pleasy in 1986.

Although the herd is now all Jerseys, this was not always the case. Prior to 1981, the Stoney Hollow prefix was associated with good quality Holsteins. Earl Stonerook was in partnership with his son Don since 1973. After Don married Jill in 1979, the 4 "Stonerooks" continued to be Holstein breeders until September 1981, when the first Jerseys arrived. During the next 5 years the Jersey count rose to 26 along with 60 Holsteins. In addition to the 86 head of milk cows, the Stonerooks raised all their own heifers. In 1986 Don & Jill decided to go ahead and assume full ownership for the farm. At the same time the herd was reduced to 60 milking head: 25 Jerseys and 35 Holsteins; this reduction was primarily due to the limited number of acres for crop production. Things stayed this way until January, 1990, when the Holsteins were sold and Stoney Hollow Farm became Stoney Hollow Jerseys.

When you ask Don why the change to all Jerseys, he's quick to respond. Don felt with the market changing to component pricing the Jersey breed would work out better. Since they ship their milk to a cheese market and receive a premium for protein, the Jerseys seemed the right choice. Also, with the limited acreage, the farm could support more Jerseys than Holsteins. Don emphasizes the fact that the Jerseys were their breed of choice!

Don Stonerook with one of his prize Jerseys, Stoney Hollow Legend Josie 326 days, 17,686 milk, 964 fat, 603 protein.

During those years of change from a Holstein herd to a Jersey herd, some other changes took place. A TMR was installed in 1976, and although not the original mixer, this feeding concept is still working today. 1984 brought the addition of a computer feeder which is still delivering HMSC + a custom Pennfield PFR to the top producers today. Another change came about in 1989, when the switch from H.M. ear corn to H.M. shell corn was made. This was done to densify the ration and give it more consistency. Don always has, and still does, feed long stem hay. It's now offered in round bale form.

The labor situation has also changed over the years. Currently Earl & Pleasy still help a good bit (Don's quick to point out the value of his parents' help). In May, 1986, Don & Jill added another "helper", their son, Garrett. April, 1991 brought another "hired man", son Jason. The two boys have already started to "share" the responsibilities of farming. Garrett is the cropsman, helping grandpa in the fields; Jason is the cow man, helping mom and dad around the barns. In the fall of 1992, additional manpower was added in the form of Don's nephew, Tom Greenleaf.

For the past several years Stoney Hollow Jerseys have started to merchandise breeding stock. Their first bull, Stoney Hollow Diplomat, was sold to ABS in July, 1992. The future plans are to increase this facet of their operation.

When asked about his future plans for the dairy herd, Don's reply is, "Right now we are at a pretty profitable level. I like the (level of) components of the milk we're shipping now. I'm not sure we'd make a whole lot more money if we continue to push harder. Bottom line is, the cost must be justified to give it a try."

We at Pennfield appreciate the opportunity to work with the Stonerook Family and wish them continued success.

ROLLING ON...IN THE 90's

Brillion

MEETS THE CHALLENGE

When Looking For Quality BUY BRILLION

BRS RO-CROP CULTIVATORS 4-6-8 Rows

The Brillion "S" tine cultivator (model BRS) with four-way tooth movement is designed for high speed cultivation, especially in conjunction with chemical weed control. The "S" tines also mulch the soil and level the ground for easier harvesting.

AG SURE STAND SEEDERS

SS8, SS10 & SS12 Seeders
For years Brillion Grass Seeders have proven to be the best machine for planting grasses and legumes... and now they're even better! Larger, heavier boxes, high seeding rates, nylon lined seed meter, heavier frame, new drive system and more. 5 ft., 8 ft., 10 ft., 12 ft., 3-point or pull type.

X-FOLD PULVERIZERS 19 Ft. to 46 Ft.

The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers... and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 46'. Now available with 20" Ductile Rollers.

SOIL BUILDERS

SOIL BUILDERS. Coulter gang can be hydraulically controlled to save maintenance dollars. 5, 7, 9, 11 & 13 shank. Available in 2 & 3 bar.

ML SERIES PULVI-MULCHERS 12'6", 13'10", 15'2", 18'9"

SERIES 03 - Built to last. Easy rolling 20" ductile iron notched or crowfoot roller wheels with a 5 year limited warranty, longer life external mounted bearings, longer, heavier drawbar for shorter turns.

HFC FIELD CULTIVATORS 16½ ft. to 31½ ft.

The "heart" of any field cultivator is the shank pivot point. A "Bulked up" shank bracket made of cast ductile iron instead of the usual formed steel bracket, incorporates a hardened steel bushing AND a zerk grease fitting to lubricate the pivot point to reduce wear. The result is thousands of acres of extended life of the shanks.

P-SERIES TRANSPORT PULVERIZERS 10 ft. to 16 ft.

New P10 Series Single Gang available as pull type or transport. Available with most old style rollers and the new 20" Ductile Wheel. Also Available As Pull Type.

MINIMUM TILLAGE CULTIVATOR

BHR RO-CROP CULTIVATORS
No-wobble parallel linkage. Set it and forget it. Folds flat for safe, easy transport 4 Row to 12 Rows.

3-SHANK DEEP TILLS

The three shank model, shown above, has a Category II hitch. With a cutting width of 7'6", it is ideal for operators with smaller acreages and horsepower. It is extremely maneuverable, yet provides the same basic deep tilling job as its "big brothers." Available with coulters.

AGCO ALLIS
4600 SERIES TRACTORS

CHORES AND MORE

Ask about the versatile AGCO Allis 4650 and 4660 chore tractors in the 40-52 PTO hp range. They provide low maintenance, economical operation, fuel efficiency and are backed by a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

- Reliable, air-cooled engines. The 3-cylinder, naturally-aspirated diesel engine delivers 40 PTO hp in the 4650 and 52 PTO hp in the 4660. It also eliminates components that cause downtime in liquid-cooled engines and is among the best in fuel consumption tests.
- Independent PTO. Both models feature a 540 rpm with a 6-spline shaft. The 4650 and 4660 come standard with a Category I 3-point hitch with telescopic stabilizers.
- Efficient drivetrains. The synchropower transmission features 12 forward and 3 reverse speeds. Optional creeper gears provide 16 forward and 4 reverse speeds. Both tractor models come as either 2WD or AWD.
- Quality features. The 4600 Series tractors feature hydrostatic power steering and premium Goodyear™ radial tires. They also feature a rear axle differential lock and mechanically-actuated wet disc brakes.

The AGCO Allis 4600 Series tractors are engineered for trouble-free service and long life. They are lightweight, compact tractors with excellent visibility, maneuverability and common-sense instrumentation. To see how easy it is to operate the 4650 and 4660, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

Rediscover The Rotary Hoe!

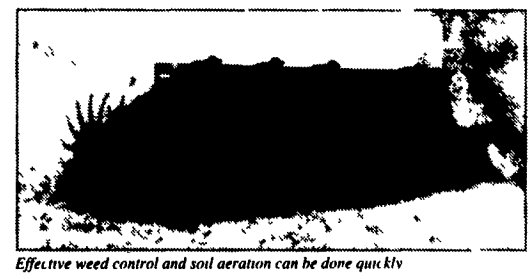
Farmers rediscover new uses for an old tool

Land hoe!

Farmers across the country are taking a new look at an old tool, the rotary hoe. Using a rotary hoe is not only a great defense against weeds, it can also help meet compliance by bringing residue back to the soil surface.

Some innovative farmers have already proven the value of the high-speed rotary hoe in aerating their reduced tillage fields before planting. Used ahead of planting, the rotary hoe breaks the seal or crust that may have formed in the soil. This enables the soil to dry and warm up faster to give you a day or two jump in planting. It also creates a mellow, uniform seedbed for better emergence.

Yetter has designed new models to work specifically in heavy crop residue. These new models operate in row crops or bedded plants with equal ease and without implement modifications.



Effective weed control and soil aeration can be done quickly.

In many areas, growers are finding rotary hoes can help reduce wind erosion, while others are using rotary hoes to incorporate broadcasted wheat and other small grains. Taking existing technology and expanding its usefulness is what makes innovators successful.

The usefulness of rotary hoes is not limited to farm fields. You might be surprised, but Yetter Rotary Hoes are being used by ski resorts to break up the crusted snow on downhill ski runs.

However, even with all these new ideas, don't overlook why the rotary hoe was originally built. Each pass of a rotary hoe can go a long way in reducing herbicide applications by incorporating the herbicide into the weed root zone to enhance its effectiveness. In fact, many preplant herbicide labels call for rotary hoeing if the weather is dry five to 14 days after application. Check your herbicide labels for details.

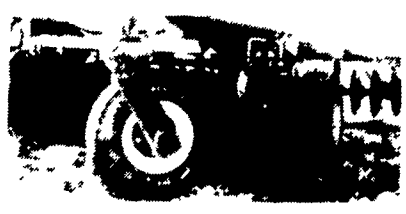
The Secret To A Level Field Is The Sunflower GAUGE WHEELS



A trademark on all FLEXIBLE Sunflower Discs is Front-Mounted Gauge Wheels. This Important Feature Prevents the Front Gangs Of The Wing Frame From Gouging, Buckling or Cutting Deeper Than The Other Gangs, Promoting A Level Ridge Or Furrow-Free Field. The Heavy Duty Gauge Wheel Features A 5-Bolt Hub And 8.00x10 Ply Tire and Tube.

DOUBLE OFFSET DESIGN

Eliminates center ridging while cutting the entire width at an even depth. Self-leveling hitch provides fore & aft leveling at any working depth.

Tractors Follow Lead Of Magnum, Maxxum Models

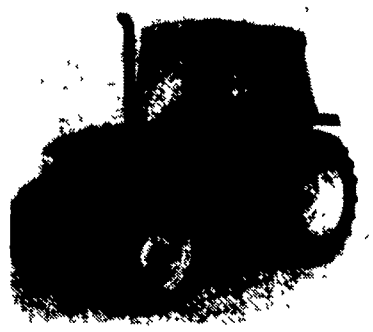
RACINE, Wis. — J I Case has announced the introduction of a new line of Case International tractors that range from 42 to 85 PTO horsepower.

The new 3200/4200 Series tractors follow the lead, in styling and productivity features, of the popular Case International Magnum™ and Maxxum® tractor lines.

The new line replaces Case International 95 Series tractors with the 3220, 3230, 4210, 4230 and 4240, rated at 42, 52, 62, 72 and 85 PTO horsepower, respectively. All the new models feature improved cooling, transmission, clutch and chassis. Cab versions feature new right-hand controls and other enhancements.

"These new tractors are powerful, versatile performers," said Steve Warner, J I Case product manager, mid-sized tractors. "They will more than meet the needs of full-time farmers and ranchers doing feedlot, loader and hay chores, and of grain farmers looking for PTO capabilities for dependable mowing, auger and other utility work."

One important feature Warner noted is the exceptional cooling that extends engine life on the new tractors. The large front and side grill-screen area provides high air intake. A new flare-tip fan optimizes air flow through the heavy-duty radiator, while the shroud on the fan provides a tight seal that keeps trash out of the radiator compartment and further increases air flow through the radiator for better cooling. A new full-width air conditioning condensor ensures uniform air flow.



The 72-horsepower 4230 is one of a new line of Case International tractors that range from 42 to 85 PTO horsepower. The 3200/4200 Series tractors follow the lead in styling and productivity features, of the popular Case International Magnum™ and Maxxum® tractor lines. All five models in the line feature improved cooling, transmission, clutch, and chassis.

Soil Moisture Key To Seed Germination

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Adequate soil moisture is vital to achieving maximum germination in corn fields, said Win Johnson, Northrup King Co. senior agronomist in the western U.S.

Johnson said that seed with good vigor contains an ample supply of key sugars. When the seed absorbs water, it reacts with these sugars, immediately triggering germination. Experts believe seeds that are slow to germinate suffer from a shortage of these important sugars.

A seed must absorb about 50 percent of its weight in water to achieve good germination, the Northrup King agronomist said. When planting corn on irrigated ground, soil moisture should be in the range of 70 percent to 100 percent of field capacity for rapid seed absorption of water. Soil moisture in the 10 percent to 12 percent range is typically too dry for germination.

To determine if soil moisture is adequate, Johnson suggests growers squeeze a handful of soil. If the soil sticks together, moisture levels are probably about right for planting. If the soil is muddy, it's probably too wet for planting. If it falls apart, it is too dry to germinate seed satisfactorily.

Many growers plant by the calendar. Johnson advises growers to plant as early as possible and suggests that conditions are best when the soil temperature is 55 degrees Fahrenheit at four inches deep at 8 a.m.

Ideal seeding depth also depends on soil conditions, he says. In cold, moist soils, planting shallow at one to one-and-one half inches is generally sufficient. However, even in drier soils, two to two-and-one-half inches is considered maximum depth. Johnson explains that when planted deeper, the seed may not be able to push the coleoptile out of the ground.

New Ultimate EXT.™ The Breakthrough Diet That Helps Her Add Several Pounds A Day.

When it comes to weight control and eating, dairy cows aren't like most people. A successful cow's diet should produce more pounds, not less, and her body weight needs to stay up after freshening.

Our new dairy feed works that way: introducing Ultimate EXT™ from Purina® Ultimate EXT helps cows produce more milk: an average of five more pounds a day in over 14,000 cows. By helping cows reduce body weight loss after calving, Ultimate EXT also improves body condition which can enhance breeding efficiency.

To put more weight on your bottom line, ask us about new Ultimate EXT. It turns good cows into great ones.
